Baron Mitsui Declares Passage of Jap Exclusion to Do No More.

TOKIO, April 16.—Fear that passage of Japanese exclusion by the United States "will undoubtedly" affect "that spirit of friendship and esteem in which we have been happy to regard you," was expressed by Baron Mitsui, Japanese foreign minister, in an interview with American press representatives.

"It cannot do more," he added, however, "but with a nation the character of yours the regard of others, we believe, is consideration of first importance."

"However we have cause for grave anxiety and it is for that reason that I make this appeal thru the press. It seems to us we are only appealing against actionw hich can appealing against action which can bring ilttle satisfaction to you."

He declared that the provisions of the gentlemen's agreement "undoubtedly form the best method of restricting Japanese immigration and maintaining the good will, confidence and respect now existing."

"Our interests are closely linked with yours" he pointed out.

"You are our greatest customer and we are greater purchasers of your goods than all the remainder of the far east combined."

He then declared that the United States being the wealthiest and most secure of the world's great nations, is in a position to take arbitrdary action, "or behave with fine magnanimity."

"If now we get from you an experience of a different character, it will undoubtedly affect that spirit of friendship and esteem in which we have been happy long to regard you" he declared, "yet it cannot do more than this. But with a nation the character of yours, the regard of others, we believe is a question of first importance."

"There is not much I can say," Baron Matsui told the newspaper men, "but this I want to do:

"I want to appeal against final passage of the proposal designed to exclude Japanese

"For many years, sometimes at considerable sacrifice, we Japanese, both in government circles and private life, have made the utmost effort to develop the friendship of the United States

"We have not given up the hope and belief that this very clear and worthy policy would be successful nor have we given up now

"The investigation has assumed the position of being something more than politics," Lodge declared.

OPPOSE FYFE APPLICATION

Grand Island Chamber of Commerce Will Invite Other Towns to Join Them.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., April 16.—Other interior Nebraska cities will be invited to unite with the Grand Island chamber of commerce in opposing the application of Chairman Fyfe, of the Western freight classification committee, for authority to adopt what is known as the western Classification No. 58 for application on all local traffic within the state, according to E. P. Ryan, rate expert of the local chamber. The application has been filed before the state railway commission and hearing has been set by the commission for May 27.

Mr. Ryan declares that the granting of the application would result in increases in the rates on many shipments. In a letter to other interior commercial bodies Mr. Ryan says:

"The commission no doubt realizes the vast amount of work it would take for the various communities to make a check of the changes that might occur in the adoption of Western Classification No. 58 and the best that could be done within the limited time would be for each community to pick out the commodities of which they ship the most and compare with those now published in classification No. 58. It appears to us that it would be proper for Mr. Fyfe, chairman of the Western Classification committee, to show specifically the various changes that they desire to make and relieve the Nebraska communities from this burden of work. No doubt the commission has not this information or it would have been submitted with the notice of the hearing.

"The nonjobbing points as well as the jobbing points are very much interested in the commodity rates published in Nebraska classification number one on apples, peaches and pears. The increase in freight rates on these commodities, if Nebraska classification was cancelled and these commodities not carried in some other tariffs, would range as high as 200 per cent. For example: On movement between Lincoln and Grand Island the present rate on apples is 14 1-2 cents per hundred. This would be increased to 28 cents per hundred. Present rates on peaches, 19 cents per 100 would be increased to 43 1-2 cents. Rate on pears, 16 cents, under the proposed change would be 28 cents. If canceling of Nebraska classification number one also cancels these commodity rates—and it apparently does—we are inclined to the view that a separate hearing should be held on this increase in freight rates and segregated fro mthe classification hearing, in order that all interested may have an opportunity to protest and to present their reason."

Means said Jesse Smith told him that "they" were not going to indict former Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and Francis J. Garvan, alien property custodian, for their action in selling the Bosch Magneto company property, but intended to blackmail them "to force them to do the things they wanted to control democratic votes in congress."

Means also said taht William J. Burns had told him that he had advised Daugherty not to try to indict Senator Wheeler of Montana, tho Daugherty gave out a statement saying that he know nothing about indictment before it was returned.

Means said that Daugherty told him to take orders from Jesse Smith and "not to let his right hand know what his left hand was doing."

COMMANDER OF FLIGHT MISSING

MARTIN AND PLANE LOST

Round World Flyer Sought by Two Destroyers.

HIS COMPANIONS AT CHIGNUK

Commander of Flight Was Forced Down.

Has Had Continual Trouble With the Seattle Since Starting From Field at Santa Monica.

CHIGNUK, Alaska, April 16.—Maj. Frederick L. Martin, commander of the U. S. army's air fleet attempting a flight around the world who was forced down in the vicinity of Kialagvik bay, Alaska, was sought by two United States destroyers today but so far no word has been received as to his fate.

The Rocky shore line toward which Major Martin was seen heading by his three flying companions late yesterday is seventy miles from any communication station and until destroyers reach the spot and find the plane it will be impossible to learn whether he landed safely.

Lieut. Erick Nelson brought the planes to Chignuk and immediately started refueling the planes with a plan of setting out today to aid the search for the missing pilot.

The destroyers Hull and Cory which were just leaving Seward for Bremerton, Wash., were immediately ordered to turn about and proceed to where Major Martin was last seen.

As the "Seattle," the plane piloted by the flight commander nosed toward the rocky shore Major Martin had no time to inform his companion what mishap to his plane had forced him out of the formation.

When the three remaining planes arrived here Lieutenant Nelson said he expected his commander to follow along in a short time. He had been forced down during previous "legs" of the flight from California but always had managed to show up shortly after the other flyers.

When several hours had passed and the Seattle did not appear over the southern horizon, the destroyers were ordered to start the search.

Nelson and his companions expected to get away early today in case the destroyers have not reached the vicinity by mid-forenoon.

Major Martin has had continual trouble with the Seatle ever since the planes left Clover Field, Santa Monica, Cal. It was forced down south of Sacramento, and had trouble again near Reddington, Cal., in the flight from Sacramento to Eugene, Ore.

On Lake Washington near Seattle after pontoons had been fitted to the Douglas cruisers the major's plane hit an obstruction and one pontoon was punctured. At the same time spray broke a blade of his propeller.

While landing at Prince Rupert on the flight from Seattle the major's plane attempted to land from too low an altitude and broke two wings struts as it landed heavily on the waters of the cove.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Maj. Frederick L. Martin, commander of the American round the world flyers who was forced to descend in Kialagvik Bay yesterday enroute from Seward to Chignuk, is in no danger, Lieut. Lowell Smith, acting commander of the flight, wired the army air service from Chignuk today.

The destroyers Hull and Cory sent to aid him were expected to have arrived at the bay at 5 a. m. (coast time) this morning, the service said today and they momentarily awaited word of his safety.

Smith said he would send a plane to the bay today if the destroyers thought it necessary after arriving there.

Smith's message follows:

"Martin was last seen headed west near Cape Igvak. Thought to have landed in Kiakagvik bay may have turned into Portage bay. Nelson was leading. Martin nearly out of sight most of the time. Did not realize he was forced down until too late to return. Have requested two destroyers at Seward to make search. Also requested boat be sent from Kanatak if any are in harbor. The flight left Seward at 10:05. Three planes landed in good condition there at 4:30."

In a supplementary message Smith said he believed Martin was in no danger and that he had probably landed in the bay because of engine trouble. Both Kiakagvik and Portage bays have been recommended by Lieut Bissell, the advance officer, as emergency stopping places

ATHENS, April 16.—The British round the world amphibian plane arrived at the old Phaleron aerodome shortly before 4 u m today.

The big plane, piloted by Maj Stuart MacLaren, winged its way gracefully into the harbor after departing from Lake Korissia island at Corfu at 11 30 a m

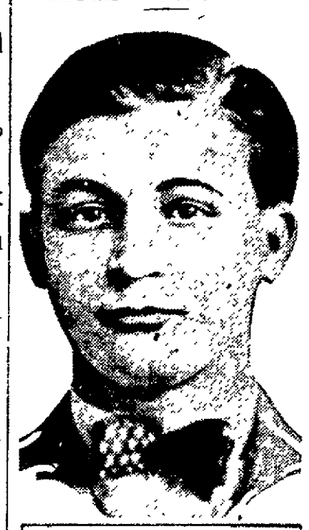

The British airmen were greeted with cheers by crowds which had been waiting for them along the water front.

Guns boomed a salute as they came ashore MacLaren was smiling and happy

"We're under way again," he said

The aviators said the flight from Corfu was made in good time and that they expected to get under way as soon as possible for Egypt.

ASKS FENCE BE WRECKED

OMAHA WIDOW SEEKS AID OF SUPREME COURT.

Says Neighbor Constructed Spite Fence and Then Painted It a Hideous Red and Yellow on Her Side.

Mrs. Mary Weiner, a widow living at 815 North Forty-eighth street, Omaha, presented to the supreme court Wednesday three pictures of what she calls a spite fence put up by her neighbor, Amos J. Brailey for the purpose of annoying her and depreciating the value of her property. These were part of a transcript in appeal from an order of Judge Hasting denying her the relief she asked, the demolition of the fence.

The structure is built on the Brailey property several feet from the dividing line and replaces a three foot wire fence. It is made up of sawed off telephone poles that are used as posts and of rough, unfinished lumber with boards of unequal length. It is from seven to ten feet high and the uncouth side is presented towards the Weiner property. To add to the humiliation of the Weiners the posts are painted a bright yellow and the boards a barn red on that side.

Mrs. Weiner says that hers is one of many properties in that section of the city that seek to give expression, thru green lawns and bright flowers, to the sense of beauty, but that the Braileys have spoiled it all. She insists that it was put up for the express purpose of injuring the value of her property and is a nuisance.

The Brailleys say that Mrs. Weiner is a quarrelsome woman who was once put under peace bonds; that she confiscated the balls and a cap belonging to the Brailey children; that she makes sarcastic and insulting remarks to Mrs. Brailey and that she reached over and cut vines and shrubbery on the Brailey property. They said her conduct became so obnoxious that they put the fence up in self defense. It occupies but a part of the lot length, being built only so as to keep the inmates of each out of the sight of the other.

Judge Hastings held that the fence was built in accordance with city ordinances; that it is not intentionally offensive; that it is entirely on the land of Brailey; that it was built in proper protection of the rights of the owner to secure privacy in his home and laundry; that it does not illegally injure the Weiner property, and that it is not a nuisance.

SPENT $9,500 ON CAMPAIGN

A STATEMENT MADE BY COOLIDGE HEADQUARTERS.

Money to Finance Activities Came From National Headquarters and From Delegates to the Convention.

It cost exactly $9,565.28 to make the winning campaign in Nebraska for President Calvin Coolidge and to secure for him the entire delegation to the national convention. This is the report made up by Frank P. Corrick, who was in charge of the work.

The comittee has headquarters in the old Commoner offices in the Press building, and Mr. Corrick was assisted in his clerical work by a number of young women. The principal item of expense was the printing, advertising, circularization and postage. This expense totaled $6,563.86. It was considerably increased by the necessity of having to print mail and hand out at many polling places lists of the Coolidge delegate candidates, following the ruling of the attorney general that no grouping was permitted by law and that names must be rotated. Most of the printed matter came from national headquarters and was mailed to names on the address list.

The money to pay these expenses came from two sources, said Mr. Corrick. The candidates for delegates contributed a total of $1400, and the remainder came from national headquarters, which has a fund raised by friends and supporters of the president in the east. The expense budget is made up of these items:

|---|---|
| Telephone & Telegrams | $ 120.59 |

DAMAGE SUIT BEING HEARD

WRINGER DEMONSTRATION IS CAUSE OF INJURY.

Edgar Lacey, Six, Seeks $5,000 for an Experience With an Electric Washer He Admired.

The $5,000 damage suit brought in behalf of Edgar Lacey, six-year-old lover of machinery, whose left hand was maimed by being caught in a wringer of an electric washing machine being demonstrated by the Maytag company, came to trial before District Judge Stewart, Wednesday morning.

The boy's father in the petition alleges that on May 19, 1923, the Maytag company was demonstrating an electric washing machine in front of a store at 120 North Tenth street and had painted the machine and had signs up to attrace attention.

It is further alleged that the boy who displayed a natural liking for machinery, became interested in the machine and in his examination of the washer got his left hand caught in the wringer and caused it to be permanently maimed and disfigured. The negligence of the Maytag company he attributes to their lack of precaution for the safety of the public and their allowing one so young to approach the open machinery so closely.

The Maytag company in their answer, state that they were not the owners or the demonstrators of the machine when the accident occurred but that the machine had been purchased from them on April 30, 1923. by W. C. Marshall who was at that time in charge of the demonstrations.

They further state that the boy was accompanied by the mother and an older brother and that the demonstrator in charge of the display warned them away from the machine just a few moments before the accident occurred.

ALLEGED IRREGULARITY IN GERMAN PROPERTY SALES.

Department of Justice Accountant Declares Alien Property Custodians Took Advantage of Interned.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Jesse Smth "split" $200,000 obtained from New York bootleggers for whisky permits with former Attorney General Daugherty, Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, today told the senate Daugherty investigating committee that Smith had informed him.

The bootleggers were demanding return of the money, Means said and Smith told him that he could not return it because he had split it with Daugherty.

"Everybody knew that Jesse Smith and Mannington were splitting with the attorney general on liquor withdrawal. Everybody knew that Jesse Smith and Mannington were working with Daugherty to get whisky permits," Means said.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Alleged irregularities in the sale of German property seized in the Philippines during the war by the alien property custodian were related to the senate Daugherty committee today by George W. Storck, department of justice accountant.

Seized property was sold at ridiculously low prices, sometimes to receivers appointed by the custodian to administer them, Storck said On one occasion President Wilson intervened to set aside a sale, in

WHITE SLAVE CHARGE MADE

DR. JOSEPH RISZK DEFENDANT IN FEDERAL COURT.

Charged With Immoral Conduct With Edith Zakem, Wife's Sister, on Journey From Syria and in Lincoln.

Prosecution was dropped for the time being, Wednesday afternoon, pending the expected arrival from Assyria of Mrs. Zakem, sr.

Judge Munger's court room took on something of the aspect of "Little Syria" Wednesday morning when Commissioner Whitmore held a preliminary hearing of the government's case against Dr. Joseph Rizk, charging white slavery. The woman in the case is Edith Zakem, called Wadeia in her own tongue, sister of the doctor's wife and involved in Mrs. Rizk's action for separate maintenance, about four months ago. The girl has a conspiracy case in district court against her brothers because of what they are alleged to have said about her.

Wadeia's testimony and that of her brothers, Joseph and Assam Zadek, took up the morning session and the hearing was continued until 1:30 p. m. Thru an interpreter, Wadeia told how she had come from Assyria last June with her sister and Dr. Rizk and the latter's sister, Moneria; how she had wired her brother Joseph for railroad fare to Lincoln, having spent her own money for her steamer ticket, and how they all went to Joseph Zakem's home on F street and spent a week or two there and at Assam's house next door.

"I no like you ask me these questions—you make me nervous," the little witness cried several times, her eyes wide and flashing. She objected strenuously to the imputation that she had been guilty of improper conduct with the doctor, whom she said she honored as a brother. She denied ever having been locked in a state room with Dr. Rizk, or in fact ever being alone with him.

Wadeia declared she was twenty-seven years old, but said she thought so because her brothers said so. Joseph Zakem, second witness for the government said the girl was only sixteen, and that his mother was on the way from Assyria and was bringing the record. He described an alleged incident of last July 12 when, he said, he found Wadeia and Dr. Rizk in bed together at his home at 8:30 in the morning. He said the doctor ran away, and that he scolded his sister and she cried. That was a week after the party had arrived from Assyria, and the doctor at once left the Zakem

WILL CALL THAW TO STAND ON THURSDAY

Millionaire Inmate of Asylum Will Try To Prove His Present Sanity.

LOOKS YOUNG AND VIGOROUS

Dr. Wilson, Alienist, Is Cross Examined.

FACES A STIFF QUESTIONING

Doctor Admits That He Had Interviewed No One But Thaw Himself in Determining His Sanity.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—Climax of the Thaw sanity trial is to be reserved for tomorrow.

"There is no chance of Harry Thaw taking the stand today," Judge Patterson, his counsel, declared this afternoon, after examination of medical witnesses had dragged beyond their expected length.

The millionaire, who is seeking freedom after seven years' confinement as a lunatic, was downcast and disappointed that his turn to testify in his own behalf had not arrived.

Looking younger and more vigorous than at any time since his trial started, Harry K. Thaw came into court today prepared for the ultimate test of his sanity, his own appearance on the stand.

Thaw had his iron grey hair trimmed and was dressed in a grey suit with a colored handkerchief jutting from the breast pocket.

He brought with him a huge attache case of black leather, stuffed with papers and busied himself with these until the first witness was called.

Thaw appeared eager to go on. His counsel expected to put him to the test late today, unless examination of medical witnesses who preceded him dragged.

The slayer of Stanford White is confident he can prove himself sane and has been coached against the fire of cross-examination that is sure to come.

The first witness, T. R. Phillips, a court stenographer, testified to taking a deposition of 30,000 words made in a single day by Thaw in May, 1918.

Dr. George Wilson, of the University of Pennsylvania, gave evidence that Thaw was sane.

Delves Into Life.

Cross-examination of Dr. Wilson delved into Thaw's whole life, his infancy when he suffered from insomnia, the St. Vitus dance of his childhood, his killing of White and his practice of flagellation.

COMPLAINT AGAINST A DEPUTY SHERIFF

Deuel County Citizens Inquiring Into Accounts of W. K. Geer Who Sold Game Licenses.

A delegation from Big Springs, Deuel county, called on Governor Bryan Wednesday to complain of lack of law enforcement and incidentally to tell the governor that Deputy Sheriff William K. Geer recently advertised that he would return fees collected by him in 1923 for state game licenses. A copy of the Big Springs News of April 4 with this advertisement was presented.

The delegation comprised Damon Seldon, M.F. Junge, Rev. Lewis Kalb J W. Warren and Elias Harrison. Mr. Junge had in his possession a receipt for the payment of $1.82 to Mr. Geer for a game license.

Chief Game Warden George G. Koster said Geer had been appointed special game warden and authorized to sell game licenses. The law permits this and authorizes the payment of a commission of 10 cents on each license sold. Geer has not been holding a special license as game warden this year. Geer sold one book of game licenses in 1924 but the money was received by the game bureau and the books in his possession taken up Mr. Koster said his records show Geer sold thirty-nine game licenses at $1 each in 1923. Whether that was the extent of his sales or whether Geer still owes for any collections he may have made as salesman Mr. Koster does not know. In times past salesmen of licenses, some of them being county officers, have been delinquent in settlement with the state, but in every case the full amount was finally recovered by the state.

A movement to oust Geer from the office of deputy county sheriff has been started, according to reports received at the capitol

Governor Bryan conferred with the Deuel county delegation but made no announcement in regard to the probable result

ZONING RIPE TOPIC AGAIN

GEORGE B. FORD TALKS TO MEN OF ADVISORY BOARD.

Exchange of Ideas May Induce Submission of Ordinance at Some Time Not Many Moons in Future.

Zoning, generally favored in cities where it has been given a show but used in Lincoln principally as a political football, is coming out from a more or less extended snooze. It was featured at a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the council chamber when members of the zoning advisory board and councilmen met with George B. Ford, vice-president of the Technical Advisory Corporation of New York. Mr. Ford stopped off for a few hours while enroute from Californiat to New York and expected to leave on a 6 o'clock train. He arrived in the city at 1:20 p. m. and the meeting was called for 2:30 o'clock.

Members of the Lincoln zoning advisory board are: J. E. Miller, G. L. Culbertson, J. L. Teeters, O. J. Fee, and M. I. Evinger. The zoning ordinance was introduced in the council May 29, 1922 and was read a second time August 6. Certain amendments were prepared for submission last August but because of the wide scope of the proposed changes, the matter was laid over. Mr. Ford is connected with the company which, in co-operation with the local advisory board, planned and worked out a zoning scheme for Lincoln. W. B. Ennis, also a vice-president of the New York corporation which has done the technical work in connection with the zoning of many large cities, was in charge of the work in Lincoln. This is Mr. Ford's first visit here.

With the exception of C. W. Bryan, all councilmen and engineers connected with the city administration since the subject of zoning was introduced have been for it. Mr. Bryan has been accused of turning it into a political football. Councilmen and engineers have not, however, been at all times certain that this particular zoning ordinance is what the people want. The chief complaint has been that it is an engineering product done in language not understandable in all instances to the average layman. For the past several weeks, City Engineer Erickson has been at work on a program of simplification and elimination Any zoning ordinance will be subject at all times to amendment the same as any other ordinance. In view of this fact, it is the thought of some persons that a good, simple and substantial framework ordinance should be passed to be added to from time to time as the public may desire.

The council has never taken the position that "this" zoning ordinance is what the people must have. Mayor Zehrung has urged passage of "a" zoning ordinance rather than "the" zoning ordinance It is now believed in official city circles as it has been all along that the people want a zoning ordinance particularly for the purpose of defining property uses. Mr. Erickson has endeavored to supply every-day language No one of the council is expected to oppose submission of the ordinance to a vote of the people if there appears a substantial demand for submission It is even possible that the council may take the initiative in this respect

When asked whether or not the ordinance may be passed or submitted to vote of the people this fall Mayor Zehrung said

"Ask me some nice easy question like who is to be the next president"

MAL DAUGHERTY AND MANNINGTON FACE CONTEMPT.

Senate Daugherty Investigating Committee Has Decided to Institute Proceedings in Short Time.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Howard Mannington, once resident of the "little green house on K street," was "paged" in vain today by the senate committee investigating former Attorney General Daugherty when the hearings were resumed.

Mannington yesterday thru his attorney, challenged the constitutional authority of the committee to continue its investigation and flatly refused to respond to the subpoena issued for him.

"Before we proceed," said Chairman Brookhart, "I want to inquire if Howard Mannington is present—the same Howard Mannington who wanted to testify when he was in Paris?"

After a pause Brookhart said that Mannington's absence would be noted. Wheeler asked ex-Senator Chamberlain, counsel for Daugherty, "what has become of the promise of Paul Howland to produce Mannington?"

"We said that he would be here at the proper time but did not promise to produce him," said Chamberlain.

Brookhart remarked that Mannington was standing in the back of the room yesterday when his counsel said he was not present.

Wheeler asked Chamberlain to ascertain from the department of justice if Mannington had been indicted in New York in a liquor case before he went to Europe and what disposition, if any, had been made of the case."

"We also want to know if any attempt has been made to take him into custody," said Senator Moses, New Hampshire.

George W. Stork, accountant of the department of justice then took the stand to wind up his testimony regarding his investigation of the sale of the Bosch Magneto company to Martin F. Kern, a German citizen by the alien property custodian during the administration of A. Mitchell Palmer.

Following the course followed by the case of Harry F. Sinclair, who was indicted by a grand jury for his refusal to answer questions of the oil committee, the Brookhart committee intends to bring them directly before the senate to answer for their alleged contempt, Mal Daugherty for his refusal to produce the books of his bank and Mannington for refusing to appear in answer to a subpoena.

If adjudged guilty by the senate, they may be committed to a "common jail" until they consent to testify. They may resort to habeas corpus proceedings however, and appeal to the supreme court. Their only escape would be to claim immunity on the ground that their testimony might incriminate them.

Because three girls, among them Miss Helen Chapman of Erasmus Hall high school, Brooklyn, N. # THE KEYNOTE IS SOUNDED

HUGHES ANNOUNCES HIS APPROVAL OF COOLIDGE.

Carefully Builds Up Case for Administration, Studiously Avoiding Any Reference to Congress.

By Lawrence Martin.
(Copyright, 1924, by U. P.)

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The real "keynote" of the republican campaign has now been sounded.

With a great deal of skill Secretary of State Hughes, the third and by far the most successful from an administration standpoint, of the keynoters thus far tried out, announced last night in his speech to New York republicans that the keynote is—Calvin Coolidge.

Weeks ago it was predicted in these dispatches that the campaign would be centered around Mr. Coolidge. Senator Jepper made an offer in his recent keynote effort to say what Hughes said last night, but Hughes put it a great deal more effectively.

Hughes carefully built up a case for the administration. His speech was like the report of a president to the congress—a report on the state o fthe union, with particular emphasis on the works of the administration in its executive departments. The studious avoidance of any reference to the record of congress—except the observation that if it had not been for obstructionists the tax reduction program would have gone thru ere this—only made Hughes' keynote the more emphatic.

It is Coolidge upon whom the country must depend, he said in effect, for carrying out the program which Harding began. It is the character of Coolidge which is offered to the nation as an earnest of leadership and of constructive achievement.

Hughes' treatment of the current scandals also skillfully emphasized this Coolidge note. The president, Hughes pointed out, is prosecuting without favor or fear, but with even-handed justice, heedless of clamor but determined on purity of government.

The last word Mrs. Taylor had from her aged fiancee was that he had been stricken with paralysis just before he got off the train at San Francisco.

ASKS $5,000 FOR COLLISION INJURY

Minnie Steffen Claims She Is Permanently Disfigured by Driver's Negligence—Defendant Denies Liability.

Minnie E. Steffen's $5,000 damage suit against James Elliott and Ernest L. Hurlburt, for personal injuries received in an automobile collision on the S. Y. A. highway west of Lincoln, January 20, 1923, came to trial before District Judge Shepherd, Wednesday morning.

Miss Steffen in her pleadings and testimony stated that she was proceeding westward on the highway in a car as the guest of Fred Hudgens. She says that they were about 150 feet behind the Hurtlburt car which was also proceeding westward when the Elliott car coming eastward passed the Hurtlburt car, swervel to the left and crashed into the car in which she was riding.

Elliott in his answer to Miss Steffen claims that her escort, Mr Hudgens, was to blame for the accident. He states taht Hudgens was attempting to pass the Hurlburt car and was on the south side of the road directly in the path of the Elliott car when the accident occurred.

Miss Steffen claims taht the car in which she was riding overturned as a result of the impact and she was thrown violently to the ground, her arm was broken and permanently disfigured, and the injuries to her spine and the shock to her nerves have rendered her unable to follow any regular employment.

WHY WOMEN LOOK 60 AT 40

With dark circles under their eyes, sallow complexions, drawn expressions drooping shoulders, a lagging step, many women of forty have the appearance of women of sixty. In many cases this condition is caused by overwork or neglect of such warning symptoms, as headaches, backache, nervousness, displacements, and irregularities which indicate ailments peculiar to women. If all women so afflicted would only rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound it would restore them to a normal healthy condition, and the premature signs of age will soon disappear.—Advertisement.

Your Problems
BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: I read Your Problems and will say some of them are very good. Now I am no love-sick girl but a grandmother of five. Have very little schooling as in my young days we did not have the good schools we now have but I have done my share to help make the schools what they are. As well lots of other old people. Now I have read where some have asked should they marry a man without a finished education. I tell you that makes me so mad when I see so many who do not amount to a hill of beans but can talk and make a big appearance but can't get down and do a decent day's work. Well I don't want to knock the schools, they are all right it is only the poor weak fools that have not good common sense to make the right kind of use of them. I commenced this letter on account of Homesick Antonia. I saw her letter in the Sunday paper. I too have lonesome and afraid spells. I will be for some time. I will be most afraid of my shadow. If some one steps in I will jump and be afraid to leave the door open. I will seem to hear someone in the room at night and will reach out and turn on the light and look but I think it is my nerves. So hope Homesick Antonia will get control of his nerves before it is too late. I try to guard against it all I can and will stop and think how foolish I am and try to see there is nothing to hurt me. But when those spells come on it is hard to control myself.

This is my first letter to you, if you think it worth while print it. If there is others more worthy cast it aside.—Another Fraid Cat.

A. I am sorry about your being fearful, but as you say, if you can get control of your nerves, I believe the sensations will pass.

Dear Mary: I too read your problems every time the paper comes. Now I want to help Homesick Antonia for I too suffered just like she does. I prayed to God to let me find someone so that I could pour out my trouble and sorrow and grief for I had no mother to go to. Left all alone I happened to meet a woman—an angel mother—a friend indeed. For she helped me so much to have her talk to me, was like a mother soothing an infant that got frightened. I know this mother can help her. She writes, "I've lost confidence in almost everybody. I've even lost confidence in my mother." Oh how sad, and she certainly has my heartfelt symphty. "Soon I shall do something desperate and please Mary help."

O, how I long to help her for I know what she is suffering. And I know this mother can, if she can talk or write to her. I wish I had Antonia's address, I would also send her my friend's address very confidentially and sincerely her's. Will be glad to send my friend's address to her.—Elaine.

A. Will you please send me your address again? I have lost it. Then if "Homesick Antonia" wishes I shall forward it to her.

Dear Mary Gordon: Since bobbed hair seems to be the most absorbing topic of conversation these days I would like to ask a few questions on this subject also give my opinion if I may.

Of what advantage is bobbed hair to a woman? Why do so many ask: "Is it alright to have hair bobbed?" Why do practically all men disapprove of bobbed hair?

Is there any glory in a head of straight bobbed hair? Constant clipping of the hair tends to take all natural wave out of it. Waved bobbed hair is artificial beauty. There is no question about that.

There is seldom a word said about the expense of cigarets, rouge, cosmetics and bobbed hair, yet there is a never-ending complaint of the expense of the schools. Do these former expenses strengthen either mind or character?

I too feel sorry for Dolores. If there were a law enforcing marriage in such cases, parents would not be so lenient in explaining such matters to their children. The greatest wrong is in depriving the child of a name. Do they realize what it means to bring an immortal soul into the world? I fear not.

Perhaps Mary, you will not print this since you approve of bobbed hair. I hope some time you will give your reason why you approve.

I beg to remain.—Not An Old Foggy.

A. Why do I approve of bobbed hair? Because it is a matter of individual opinion as to its convenience, beauty and suitability.

I question your statement that constant clipping tends to do away with the natural wave of hair. Why is it that more men than women have naturally curly hair? We have had several men in The Journal office with wonderful natural marcels, more beautiful than any woman's I ever saw.

The readers have a perfect right to disagree with me. I don't mind a bit, just so it is done courteously—rather welcome letters from those whose views differ from mine.

Varnish Remover.

Dear Mary Gordon: Here is something which removes all old varnish and stain and also is very good to use in the boiler or wash machine for whiting clothes. Care should be taken while using on furniture not to get it onto the hands as it will burn; use a scrub brush and rinse with hose. One cup is plenty for the boiler or wash machine. Take one can of lye, one oz. of salts of tartar, one oz. of lump ammonia. Dissolve in two gallons of hot water. Stir until dissolved, but be careful when pouring in the lye as it splashes easily. When cooled pour into glass jugs.—Mrs. R. E. H.

CHURCH FIGHT AT CRESTON

Pastor of Church of Christ Said to Have Assaulted Church Member.

CRESTON, Ia., April 16.—A factional fight between alleged malcontent members of the Church of Christ here and the regular members gives assurance of at least two rounds today.

The first round had a church yard setting and C. H. Kneller, one of the principles, concedes that the Rev. Jerome E. Emanuel, pastor, packs a terrible wallop.

The second round between the two is scheduled before the county attorney Saturday.

Rev. Mr. Emanuel is said to have gone to the church to prepare his Sunday sermon. When he got there Kneller and three other laymen were boarding up the windows.

It was when Kneller attempted to prevent the minister from entering thru a window that he is alleged to have been assaulted. Rev. Mr. Emanuel pleaded not guilty when arrested and the hearing was set for Saturday.

The factional trouble started when the insurgent group elected a separate board of trustees and attempted to oust Rev. Mr. Emanuel. Failing in this they have threatened to close the church.

GENTLE WORD FOR CRITICS

MAYOR ZEHRUNG DENIES THAT INFORMATION HELD UP.

Explains So-Called Three-Way Control of Certain Ground Spaces and Why Some Kicks Are Passed.

The much-discussed and be-dogoned municipal triple park space play of parks to streets to public safety, has been carefully placed by Mayor Zehrung upon the municipal operating slab for dissection and expert analysis. The immediate cause of the slabbing was a communication signed by Ella Kincaid appearing in Wednesday morning's State Journal on the subject of city parking.

Her complaint was that no one seems to have definite control or supervision of parking. Around the capitol, she says, are properties with rank weed growth in the park spaces in the summer.

This matter of confusion has, in fact, been found to exist at times among departmental heads at the city hall. Commissioner Cowgill holds an apparent control over park spaces insofar as it reaches to leaves and the raking of the same into the gutter. Commissioner Wright has a certain authority relative to weeds on vacant properties. The park department has control of the trees in the park spaces and the grasses. In attempting to broadcast some sort of understanding on who is who and where and why in regard to such spaces, the mayor issued the following:

"People do not always understand that property from lot line to lot line belongs to the city. Property holders are expected to build and maintain walks. It is the proper thing for the property holder to rake the leaves in the park space and make proper disposition of them. It is not the proper thing to rake leaves into the street gutter and permit them to wash down and clog the catch basin.

"Cleaning of streets and street gutters naturally is a duty which falls upon the street department. The cutting of weeds on vacant lots is placed by law under the health department. The park department plants trees and removes the dead and useless from park spaces. There is no reason why the mayor's office or the park boss should not at all times give satisfactory attention to legitimate kicks regarding park spaces. When leaves are dumped into the street, it is a great problem. While the health department has charge of weeds on empty lots, I am satisfied that the park department has jurisdiction in matter of weeds growing in the park spaces. This should be a park problem."

REALTORS HEAR PREACHER

Rev. Ray E. Hunt threw overboard the subject assigned him by the Realtors' program committee for their Wednesday luncheon, and proceeded to talk on the problems of city growth and their effect on realty values. A plainsman by birth but a New Yorker by adoption, Mr. Hunt was able to speak at first hand on recent developments in the metropolis, and spoke at length on the transportation and housing problems there. Incidentally he said that lower Manhattan experience no such trouble with automobile traffic as did Lincoln, the myriad pedestrians taking things into their own hands while an occasional officer did what he could to protect the street cars and automobiles from the crowds. He also forecase the stationing of a traffic cop in mid-Hudson to direct the congested shipping. Formerly the ferry and barge men respected ocean vessel routes in the Hudson, Mr. Hunt explained, but the necessity for shipping in food supplies every day afresh for the metropolis had so congested the river that unheard of measures were becoming necessary.

THOMAS COMMENDS HENSEL

New Prohibition Director Puts Lancaster County at Peak of Law Enforcement List.

Elmer Thomas, new prohibition director for Nebraska, has paid to Sheriff Hensel the compliment of placing Lancaster county at the top of the list of counties in matter of law enforcement co-operation and form. The compliment quite naturally extends to the state sheriff's office which cooperates with the county sheriff in all booze investigations in the county. The following from the Omaha Bee explains itself:

"Liquor law enforcement in the state has been generally good, according to Elmer Thomas, prohibition director, who, with state and federal agents, checked and surveyed every county in the state. The check was made on officers who have been willing at al ltimes to cooperate with federal authorities. Lancaster county was put at the head of all the counties by Thomas as being the best law enforcement county in state with Nemaha and Jefferson right behind it. Based on the reports of the agents, Thomas says that out of the 90 or more counties, there are but 10 to 12 where officers have not been over-enthusiastic about cooperating with state and federal authorities. Altho Thomas declined to give the name of the counties or their officers, he stated that Douglas county was no worse than the other 10 or 12 counties but that he thought of late this county was in pretty good shape.

Reason for delay in delivery was not explained.

STUDENTS ASKED A POINTED QUESTION

Wendell Berge Inquires Whether They Wish to Side With Bootleggers or Constitution—Tells of Conference.

"Are we students going to side with bootleggers or with the constitution?" was the question with which Wendell Berge closed a talk at the World Forum Wednesday noon at the Grand hotel. Mr. Berge told of the conference on law enforcement which he attended recently in Washington, D. C. of the 250 student representatives present, only one man besides Mr. Berge, a Kansan, belonged to a college west of the Mississippi. Harvard and other eastern universities had a dozen or more present.

The meeting was not a prohibition conference, he said, and some of those in attendance were not in sympathy with the Volstead act. The idea back of the meeting was to cultivate among college students of the country a sentiment tor the enforcement of law. The moral side of drinking was not discussed. The question was whether the constitution was to be nullified by a law-defying minority. Senator Borah of Idaho was quoted as one of the strongest speakers heard.

The point was brought out that no matter what a citizen thought of a law, it was his duty to uphold it so long as it is on the books. Mr. Berge applied the same principle to military service. He said he included in his address at Washington an expression of his belief that it is one of the obligations of a student to teach and preach patriotism. No matter how greatly he may be opposed to war, he cannot desert his country in time of stress; the matter becomes one of state instead of individual conscience. "It is not our privilege to violate law, even if we object," he said

Rev. H. F. Huntington suggested that a resolution be prepared by a committee of students and faculty members, to protest against the Japanese exclusion act. The matter did not seem sufficiently well understood for the suggestion to be acted upon.

FAIRFIELD, Neb., April 16.—An egg, measuring nine and a half inches in circumference the long way and containing another perfectly formed egg, was found in a nest in her hen house by Mrs. C. D. Hayes living near here. The egg was laid by a Buff Orpington hen and is the third one that has been found of it's kind this season, but is by far the largest specimen.

34 Newspapers asked 2024 People—
"What pen will you buy next?"
And more answered Parker than any other
New National Sentiment due to Parker Creations that abolish pen faults and inspire writing
[Results audited by Ernst & Ernst, Certified Public Accountants]

IN 34 cities, "Inquiring Reporters" were sent out by newspapers near the close of 1923 to interview pen owners at random. These investigators only knew their newspapers wanted the facts. They knew not why. They knew nothing which would prejudice their reports.

They canvassed people on the streets, in offices, stores and homes. And everywhere they asked 3 questions:

"What pen do you now own?"
"When was it bought?"
"What pen will you buy next?"

Then the newspapers certified the returns. And Ernst & Ernst, the Certified Public Accountants, audited them. The results show:

Of the 2024 people who specified the pen that they would buy next, more named the Parker than any other.

1106 people interviewed had bought in the past two years. (This is about the time that the classic Parker Duofold has been on the market.) Of this group, more had bought the Parker than any other pen. And on the question, "What pen will you buy next?" 66% more named the Parker than any other single make—about 5 to 3!

Not snap judgment this—but people's readiness to pay their money for this new-day pen, most of them having tried other pens first! America has turned so sweepingly to Parker Pens because they introduce creations that brush away long-standing pen faults.

PLAN UNION OVER BONUS

PROGRESSIVES TO JOIN WITH THE DEMOCRATS.

Would Modify the Republican Insurance Policy Measure—Propose Option of Insurance or Cash.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Progressive republicans in the senate today planned to unite with the democrats to modify the republican "insurance policy" bonus bill.

Confidence was felt that they would enable the democrats to put over a cash option plan so that veterans may choose between a twenty-year endowment life insurance policy or immediate money. This situation developed as the republicans today prepared to bring up their bonus bill for action and democrats sought to rally support within their own ranks to put over their plan.

The only hitch that democratic leaders fear is that anti-bonus senators on their side of thec hamber will bolt party ranks in an effort to keep any bonu bill from being enacted.

At least five democrats and perhaps more may vote against both plans. If too many desert the bonus situation may be tied in a knot and progressives with their balance of power may be helpless.

But should the democratic substitute fail, progressives will vote for the republican bill rather than fail to enact any bill at all.

This state of affairs has brought about an entire change in the legislative program. It is now seen that the bonus cannot be passed "in three days" as leaders hoped. The fight may last more than a week and all the time the tax bill will be waiting impatiently on the senate calendar. Two appropriation bills also remain to be disposed of.

THE LOVE THAT LASTS

BY FAY STEVENSON

Copyright, 1924, New York World, (Press Publishing Co.)

A Bitter Conflict.

Elaine, her husband and Ben Tarbel stood spellbound for several moments without speaking. There seemed to be no explanation possible. She had just emerged from a tea room with Ben, her old sweetheart, who was now a widower. To tell the truth and say they had met by accident and merely had gone in to talk things over would sound as if she were trying to simplify matters.

"Well, what does this mean?" suddenly demanded Billy Barrington. "Even if you are a free man, Tarbel, will you please explain what right you have to become a tea hound with my wife?"

Tarbel refused to answer the question. He turned on his heel and swung around the corner, leaving Elaine to face her husband with the answer. It might be that his actions were wise in this respect. No man wishes a street quarrel over a woman. If he can he will disappear only to face the problem under more secluded conditions. Elaine could not believe that he would not explain matters later by telephone or in their home.

Meanwhile, Elaine was left with a husband whose wrath was steadily increasing.

"Let's go home before we discuss things further," begged Elaine as they walked rapidly along the street.

"Home? That means a lot to me now, doesn't it?"

"But, Billy, how silly of you to misunderstand."

"Silly, eh? How would you feel if you saw Betty Dana issuing forth from a tea room with me?"

"Why, I'd think you met by chance just as Ben and I did, and went in to chat over the cup that cheers!" laughed Elain nervously.

"Well, I'm not as dumb as all that. What if you did meet old Tarbel on the street, is that any reason why you should go simpering in to take tea and hold hands?"

"Now, Billy, dear, you're running away with yourself," warned Elaine. "Ben and I never held hands in our courtship days. But seriously, Billy, I was dead tired. I'd been painting lamp shades all day at Bessie's and I thought it would be a good chance to rest and drink a cup of tea."

"Of course a wife who has to support her husband does need to rest before she comes home to cook his dinner," sarcastically admitted Billy. "All right, Elaine, that's all right, but I'm going around to the club to take dinner tonight."

Elaine entered the apartment alone. The living room furniture had been taken back by the furniture company because of their failure to meet payments, the icebox contained nothing but the remains of a salad and a dab of butter. So this was married life!

Tomorrow—A Husband's Way.

GOV. SMITH A CANDIDATE

NEW YORK EXECUTIVE MAKES FIRST PUBLIC UTTERANCE.

Declares He Has Not Raised Hand Inside State or Out, However, to Further His Presidential Ambitions.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 16—Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York state today is a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination.

Making his first public utterance on the question, which has been agitated with varying degress of strength for over a year, the governor of the empire state, speaking before the democratic designating convention here, announced his position in this language:

"If other delegates to the national convention feel the same way about it as you do and the result is a triumph, you can tell them that I pledged you here before God Almighty himself that they will never have cause to regret their action thru any act of mine."

A few minutes before Smith made his speech, the convention, which was called to select delegates and alternates to the national convention had adopted unanimously, a resolution that the delegates be instructed to present the name of Governor Smith to the convention as the empire state's choice to lead the democratic party in the nation.

Smith said he had not raised his hand "either inside the state or outside of it" to help the present situation along and he did not intend to. But he admitted "the man who hasn't that ambition (to be president of the United States) has a dead heart."

Smith today was resting at the executive mansion and is not expected to amplify his remarks in any way. He will probably leave his campaign in the hands of his friends and political advisers.

98 Out of Every 100 Women Benefited

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
100,000 Women Answer

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 100,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100. Did you ever hear of anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

It's reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

INADEQUATE TONNAGE.

NEW YORK, (By mail.)—Representatives of the automobile export industry have informed the shipping board there was inadequate American tonnage out of New York for Australia to meet their requirements and that section 28, effective May 20, in effect, would divert a large proportion of their exports to that country to the Pacific coast, entailing greater transportation cost.

Herman Auerbach, Salt Lake junior welterweight, won on a foul from Virgil Sparks, Pocatello, Ida.

MAKES PLAYS REAL OVER THE RADIO

Edward H. Smith, director of the WGY players, who broadcast from Schenectady, N. Y., realizes early that to make a play intelligible to an unseeing audience he must create an "atmosphere." So he prepared these instruments for creating the "atmosphere" when the drama is broadcast. The board contains doors, telephone, clock, alarm clock and tap bells and also a buzzer. The entrance and exit of players is indicated by the sound of the opening and closing of doors, and the illusion is complete, tho members of the audience may be hundreds of miles away.

VOTE DOWN PLANK DENOUNCING KLAN

Missouri Democratic State Convention in Uproar Over the Matter —Demand Civil and Religious Liberty.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 16.—After a spectacular battle lasting until dawn today the democratic Missouri state convention here voted down a platform plank denouncing the ku klux klan.

During the discussion the anti-klan declaration the speakers platform was filled with dozens of delegates milling about seeking recognition of the chair. Personal encounters were narrowly averted during the bitter debate. Hoots and catcalls sounded continually from the floor of the convention.

When the resolution was declared defeated by a viva voce vote, accusations were hurled against Frank H. Harris, chairman of the state committee, that he had ordered Chairman R. E. Culver not to allow a record vote to be taken.

A compromise offered by Charles M. Hay, St. Louis demanding "civil and religious liberty" was then adopted and the convention adjourned.

INSANE MAN DIES OF HURTS.

OMAHA, April 16.—Lon E. Shover of Des Moines, who, riding at terrific speed, plunged his automobile into a telegraph pole at the east end of the Locust street viaduct Monday night, apparently with suicidial intent, died in a hospital here this morning after lying in a comatose condition for thirty hours.

Shover left a note saying he realized he had become insane and purposed to kill himself. A phial of poison and a loaded pistol were found in his pockets.

BETTY CHANGES HER MIND ABOUT SOMETHING.

MY, how Betty's face did cloud up when her mama told her she would have to wear the same dress to school that she had worn the day before.

"Oh, I just hate to wear my old blue dress again," she pouted, stamping her feet. "All the other girls have on such pretty dresses and I have to wear the same old thing."

Betty slammed the door after her as she left the kitchen and ran upstairs.

I just wish mama had to go t——," she began, when a step on the stairs behind her startled her. Betty turned around and saw that her little friend, Gocomeback was following her up the stairs.

"Gracious!" he laughed as Betty's face changed from frowns to smiles

"There Goes the Bell."

at sight of him. "You had better smile at me or I'm liable to stumble and tumble down again. I've been trying for a long time to get you to see me, but the frowns on your face were so thick you couldn't see me."

"I know it," laughed Betty, "but I guess you would feel the same way if you were in my shoes and had to wear that old blue dress again today. I wore it yesterday and I don't want to wear it to-day."

"Is that all that worries you?" asked Gocomeback. "Well, I think my little friends across the water have the right idea about school clothes. I was just going over there for a visit. You have plenty of time, so come along."

Like a flash, Betty was whisked right off the stairs. She sailed through the air, over mountains and seas, and when she was set down again on the ground, it was in a strange country.

Crowds of little girls, all wearing black aprons and wooden shoes, passed them.

"Where are we, anyway?" she whispered to Gocomeback. "Where are the little orphan children going?"

"What makes you think we are orphans?" asked one little girl who had overheard Betty's whisper. "We're not orphans at all. We're on our way to school."

"Well, in America," explained Betty, "most of our orphans dress alike in blue dresses. So I thought you were orphans because you were all in black aprons."

"Gracious, no!" laughed the little girl. "You see in Belgium, all school girls dress in these black aprons, so we can't spill ink on our good clothes. Then too, our good teacher says that when we all dress alike we can keep our minds on our studies. If everyone had on a different dress, we'd be gazing around at the different clothes instead of studying.

"Our teacher says that it looks so much better to see all of us wearing the same kind of aprons, than to see fifty different colors staring her in the face. I guess she's right. We children can't feel hurt because our neighbor has on a better dress than we have. But there goes the bell. Good-by." And away she ran to join her companions.

Betty started. The bell she thought was the school bell in Belgium was her own school bell. Without a word, she slipped into her blue dress, kissed her mama good-by and hurried off to school.

How Lillian Took the Situation in Hand.

LILLIAN'S ring! At the grateful sound I stopped in my hurried toilette for a little paean of thanks and hurried into the living room, where I pressed the button which opened the outside apartment door.

Mrs. Marks was no longer talking. The sudden ring just as she was glibly assuring the detective at the door that the bell was out of order, evidently had nonplussed even her impudent assurance for a second, and the detective was taking advantage of the fact to bluster.

"I thought so," he said raucously. "You've been lyin' to me all the time. Now you open this door, and let me in to see this Mrs. Graham, or I'll know the reason why."

"Oh, see what a long tail our cat's got!" was the only answer she vouchsafed him, and fearing that the thing would develop into a wordy brawl which would attract the attention of the other tenants, I stepped into the hall.

"Thank you, Mrs. Marks, for answering the door," I said, cordially, and then I turned to the man, and swept his person with a coolly inquiring look.

A Friend In Need.

"Aren't you the man who wished me to patronize your baggage delivery auto in Sag Harbor?" I queried distantly. "I cannot imagine what you are doing here!"

"Can't you?" he sneered. "Well, do you want me to tell you out here in the hall, or will you let me in?"

There was the distinct threat in his voice, and I saw that he counted upon my probable hatred of a scene. Mrs. Marks thrust her face past mine close to the door.

"Don't you let the likes of him bluff you, dearie," she advised, and was about to let loose a volley of abuse at him when I caught her arm. Lillian, bag in hand, had just come into sight around the bend of the stairs. This was what I had been waiting for. Lillian had most of the threads of the affair in her capable hands. I would turn this particular snarl over to her. With a little welcoming smile I accosted her.

"There is someone here, Lillian, whom I think you wish to see," I said, trying to make my voice and demeanor that of a school teacher turning a refractory boy over to the principal.

She set down her bag and surveyed the man from head to foot with a coolly insolent glance.

"Ah! yes!" she said. "The gentleman who has been taking such an interest in us lately. How fortunate that he should call just now. Thank you, Madge," as I swung open the door into the apartment. "Won't you come in?" She turned to the man with punctilious courtesy.

He tried to swagger.

Lillian Is Amused.

"I don't know whether I will or not," he growled with a venomous glance at Mrs. Marks, who was leaning against the wall, giggling openly.

Lillian picked up her bag and passed him as if he were nowhere within her vision.

"As you wish," she said calmly, and as she came through the door Mrs. Marks sprang forward, her hand upon the chain, and confronted the detective, who, with a sudden descent from his pose, had shuffled rapidly after Lillian.

"Sure you know what you want to do?" she queried offensively. "I hain't got no time to be botherin' with lightnin' change artists. I told you my pie was burnin' up in the oven, so if you're comin' in here, git a move on you."

The man growled something in his throat as he came into the hall and Mrs. Marks, after she had put up the chain, called out a parting mockery as she tripped back down the hall:

"You want to take care of that in-growin' disposition, cull," she advised. "It might fester on you. Ta, ta, ladies! If you need any help lookin' after the menagerie, just sing out, and I'll come a runnin' with the iron hook."

Lillian's eyebrows were a trifle elevated as she passed into our living-room, and I guessed that she did not quite approve of the general air of being perfectly at home which Mrs. Marks radiated. But there was also a tiny gurl at the corner of her lips which told me that she enjoyed my neighbor's baiting of the clumsy detective as much as I did.

THERE'S a question—among many related to it—that agitates the heart of every girl who lives: "How can I make him love me and hold him tight all the days after?" Who can answer this greatest of all double-barreled questions. Who? No one but Cupid and he—ah, he requires many books brimming with wisdom and clear tender words of love's enlightenment wiser far than book learning in a lecture—to tell the secret of the magic. What to do—what not to do—all the countless things of love—how EAGERLY each girl listens to the words that fall upon her ears and echo in her heart like the peals of wedding chimes!

YOUR HEALTH

Have Your Child Examined If He Has "Spring Fever"

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

SPRINGTIME and the approach of the long vacation bring many demands on the already busy mother. The boys and girls of the family have worked hard during the school year. Spring examinations have been an added strain on these children.

Periodic examinations for everyone are a most important part of health preservation. This is particularly true in the case of the school child.

Long hours in school, a cold lunch, perhaps an hour or more on the train to get to the school, and insufficient sleep, are some of the reasons for lowered resistance in these children.

With lowered resistence come such ailments as colds, tonsilitis, indigestion, perhaps measles and other infections. Most of these conditions can be guarded against by regular examination of the child and the correction of the small defects which are found.

Included in these examinations should be a survey of the heart, teeth, tonsils, nasal sinuses and the urine.

Remember that most children of school age do not as a rule complain much of their aches and pains. Not until there is fever, upset digestion and real illness is the mother aware that something is wrong.

Then may follow weeks of illness for the child, and added work and worry for the mother.

Let me again impress upon you that regular attention given the child all through the year will carry him through the school year and to vacation time without mishap.

Good simple food, meals at regular hours, a sensible lunch to take to school, at least nine hours' sleep each night—all these will do much to keep the children in good health.

The ailments of Springtime are not due to the weather. They are due in the first place to the run-down condition caused by a Winter of hard work and rich food.

The listlessness of Springtime has some relation to the temperature, but it has a physical basis, the importance of which cannot be overlooked.

Every parent should give heed, especially at this season, to the needs of the child. A little attention now will save anxiety later.

Answers to Health Questions

MRS. F. E. Q.—Will you advise me what makes my chest pain just below my shoulders and also the cause of slight smothering spells while doing my housework?

A.—This condition might be due to a number of things. I would advise having your chest examined to determine the cause in your particular case.

E. F. L. Q.—If one were suffering from ulcers of the stomach, would this condition show on an X-ray?

A.—As a rule the ulcer is seen by the X-ray. If you have symptoms of this condition, and it is not shown on the picture, it would be well to have another X-ray taken.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, APRIL 17.

An active if not an exciting day is read from the prevailing sidereal operations. With Mars holding an important place by lunar and mutual direction, things may be lively—a situation to which Saturn lends his support. However, there is need of caution in the handling of moneys, and it may be disastrous to indulge in litigation, losses being indicated. With proper care, some substantial gain and advantage should be realized but litigation should be undertaken only with deliberation.

Those whose birthday it is will have a year in which substantial progress should be made if they avoid litigation, protect themselves against loss of money and sign all papers with sufficient deliberation. A child born on this day will be active, resourceful and adventurous but it should refrain from disputes and litigation.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Stepping Out of Yourself

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

THEY found him wandering in the rain dazed and confused the other day, the man who disappeared from home six months ago.

And somebody sent for his wife and she brought all the children and came and met him, and as soon as she spoke he remembered her and he knew the children, and they all cried together and went home very happy.

And it seems the man didn't remember a thing or who he was or where he came from and had been very poor and very ill and very lonely and his wife and their children were living in their comfortable home wondering and wondering what had happened to John.

And John does not drink and never was known to step from the straight and narrow path. But one day he went out of the house and forgot his name and couldn't tell where he lived and lost all idea of his own business and went and found work somewhere digging ditches. Then all at once, after some months, he woke up in the ditch with his shovel in his hand and he looked at the shovel and wondered where he'd got it and couldn't think what he was doing at all. And he laid down the shovel and wandered away and now he's at home selling real estate again and everything is all right—for awhile.

What Made Him Forget?

I wonder what really made him forget.

Was there something he didn't like to remember, and did it keep wearing and wearing on his mind till finally he had his wish—and forgot?

It's a dreadful tragedy, of course, to forget your name and not remember those who love you and those you love. But sometimes haven't you thought what fun it would be to forget everything and everybody and be someone else for a change, some one absolutely different, some one with a new name and a new disposition and a new job and new clothes and a new place to live and new joys, yes, even new troubles—they wouldn't be half so bad as the old ones.

Not for awhile anyhow.

I know a woman who went across the continent once all alone.

And she was tired of home and tired of the laundry bills and tired of the gas bill and tired of the oldest boy's trouble in school and tired of the youngest daughter's hatred of practice and tired of her husband's odd little way of saying, "ahem" every time he was going to ask a question and she hated the color of her own eyes and couldn't bear the way she had to comb her hair. Oh, she really was very tired indeed, and something called her to the East from San Francisco and on the train she told people that her name was Mrs. Hugh O'Malley and she lived south of Market street in San Francisco and had seven children and her husband was a butcher and her three oldest were married and one of the youngest was in Italy studying music and one was in China on a tea plantation and one lived in India, a missionary or something.

Let's Choose Today!

And she had the grandest time telling tales about herself you ever heard. She spoke with a little bit of a brogue, and when any discussion came up about anything, she didn't say what she thought herself but what she thought Mrs. O'Malley would have said. And her mind got such a rest that she looked different and felt different and was different.

And by the time she got to New York she was so tired of worrying about the one in India and fretting about the one in China and wondering whether it really was going to pay to keep Honora in Italy that she was tickled to death to drop them all out of the train window the day she started back home.

And her own house and her own servants and her own children and her own husband and her own friends all looked good to her.

Even her old own worries were welcome.

Yes, it would be nice to step out of yourself for a few weeks, wouldn't it? Who would you choose to be if you could do it?

A Maharajah, with a black pearl in his turban, a New York society woman with the newest sort of silhouette, a good-natured "hand" on a river steamer with nothing to do but laugh and sing and eat and sleep and carry a couple of hundred pounds up and down the gangplank?

Come, the world's open before you. Let's choose—just for to-day. Maybe it will save you from an attack of aphasia.

Three-Minute Journeys

WHERE MORE POETS LIVE THAN IN ANY OTHER LAND.

ONE of the strangest and least visited countries in the world is Iceland, that huge island up under the Arctic Circle, about half way between Europe and America, which belongs to Denmark, although it enjoys a great measure of home rule.

Contrary to the general idea, Iceland is not a land of eternal snow. The inhabited sections enjoy a comparatively mild climate. For weeks at a time during the Winter season it does not get colder than thirty degrees above zero, and in the Summertime, Iceland enjoys an agreeable temperature, having some days when the thermometer reaches seventy.

Instead of "Iceland," this strange island should be named "Volcano Land." It contains no less than one hundred and seven volcanoes more or less active. It contains lava beds as large as the State of Connecticut. The entire island, by the way, is larger than New England.

In Iceland more than eighty thousand people reside. Most of them are farmers who raise cattle and sheep. The largest town contains about 10,000 inhabitants. The visitor to Iceland finds it a country of contradictions. Its people are well-educated and intelligent. They publish no less than eighteen newspapers. On the other hand there are no railroads and few good roads. Almost all traveling is done on horseback, and goods are transported in rough carts.

For its size, Iceland has produced more poets than perhaps any other nation in the world, and in its public library, which contains fifty thousand volumes, are preserved some of the finest epics ever written in any tongue.

The Vikings have been in Iceland since the middle of the ninth century and from it their galleys set forth to the discovery of Greenland and New England which they called Vineland. Even before the Norse discovery, it is believed that Irish monks settled in Iceland, and traces of their occupation have been found by the Norse settlers.

Iceland is really two islands connected by an isthmus across a strait about four miles wide. This isthmus rises abruptly from the sea to a height of eight hundred to a thousand feet and is naturally impassable.

The Icelander can leave his green pastures and in a very short time find himself in a region of hot springs and geysers as striking as those in our National Park.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

Four Ways to "Dress Up" a Home Dinner.

UNUSUAL little dinners are always appreciated for the home tables and "made dishes," so called, are quite a treat instead of the heavier roasts that best befit the Sunday table. These little dinners are not perhaps cheaper than a roast, which lasts for more than one meal, but they are a change, and as such are welcome.

Sausage Steeples.

Make a good pie-crust and roll it out thin, then cut it in strips three inches wide. Remove six sausages from their cases and season the meat with a little pepper, salt, the juice of an onion, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, a teaspoonful of minced celery leaves and a tablespoonful of very finely-chopped walnut meats. Add a beaten egg and a tablespoonful of cream. Spread the pastry strips thickly with the mixture then roll them and pinch the tops to steeple shape and place them on a shallow buttered baking-pan. When the pastry is cooked the sausage mixture will be done. Remove the steeples to a hot dish and serve them with apple sauce.

Sweetbread and Oyster Pie.

Parboil a large pair of sweetbreads in salted water for twenty minutes, then blanch them in cold water for five minutes, trim and dice them. Drain a quart of oysters—about four dozen—and heat the liquor. When it is at boiling point drop in the oysters and cook them two minutes, then drain them. Make two cupfuls of well-seasoned cream sauce and add the sweetbreads and oysters. Have ready a dish lined with good crust. Pour in the mixture, cover it with the top crust, in which vents have been placed, and bake until the crust is done. Serve the pie hot.

Escalloped Scallops.

Add to one quart of fresh scallops a beaten egg, pepper, salt, the juice of a large onion and a tablespoonful of chopped capers. Butter a baking-dish and dust it with fine crumbs. Put in a layer of the scallops, then a layer of crumbs. Dot this layer with butter, add another layer of scallops, then crumbs and so on until all the materials are used. Sprinkle a little grated English cheese over the top, add a small cupful of rich milk or light cream and bake the scallops about half an hour in a medium oven.

Sauced Eggs.

Heat a shallow baking-dish, then put in little lumps of butter to grease it well. Break in carefully, eight or more eggs without breaking the yolks. Pour over them a sauce consisting of one ounce of butter, a little spiced catsup, pepper and salt, and bake them until they are set. Serve them garnished with broiled bacon strips.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE.

I am a young woman twenty-five years old. For the past year I have gone with a young man six years younger than me. I am deeply in love with this young man. Everyone tells me I am wasting my time keeping company with him.

As I have no parents to advise me, I wish your honest opinion as to whether a marriage with this young man would be a success. This young man has many good qualities, but his parents are rather disreputable. As he loves me dearly, I believe that my influence would prevent him from becoming "a chip off the old block." What shall I do?

ORPHELINE.

ORPHELINE: You will be wise, my dear, if you consider well all phases of the situation, before consenting to marry a man younger than yourself. Personally, I do not approve of such marriages, especially under such circumstances as you relate. Be careful that you are not mistaking pity for love. So think it over well, and think not alone of the present, but of the future.

Make Your Eyes Glow with Beauty

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

ALL women who would achieve true beauty must pay particular attention to the care of their eyes.

No woman can qualify for real loveliness without the strong, clear expression of attractive eyes, well cared for. The look of strength and brilliancy can only rest in eyes that bespeak intelligent care and attention. Eyes that are clear and not inflamed; eyes that are bright and not tired. Eyes that are, as everyone's can be, normal in their natural beauty instead of dull from lack of attention. Attend to your eyes—wash and exercise them—and they will be beautiful.

If you overstrain your eyes, if you abuse them by making them work in bad lights and forcing them to undue effort, you cannot expect them to yield the most satisfactory beauty results.

Aside from the condition of your eyes themselves, the appearance of your eyebrows and eyelashes has much to do with the beauty results your eyes achieve. The sooner you learn to lavish on them the proper care, the sooner your eyes will reflect the high expression of beauty that should be theirs.

In regard to straining your eyes, you may feel that the demands of your daily work are such that you cannot avoid eyestrain. No matter what the nature of your work, you should be able to hit the strain or to make it such a negligible quantity that it doesn't count.

Never, never read or write in poor light. You should place yourself in such a position in regard to the light that it streams over your left shoulder. This gives you plenty of light on your work and removes any shadow from before you.

The white of the eye should be a clear, bluish white. If you find that your eye sometimes takes on a bloodshot appearance from strain, loss of sleep or from some lack of proper care, you should immediately take steps to remedy this. If you cannot manage to use your eyes less, you can apply remedies that will help.

There are any number of good eyewashes on the market. You may consult your druggist and buy one that he recommends or you may have him mix one for you.

Here is an eye lotion that helps wonderfully to bring the beauty back to inflamed eyes:

Borax, 2 grains
Rosewater ointment, ½ ounce.

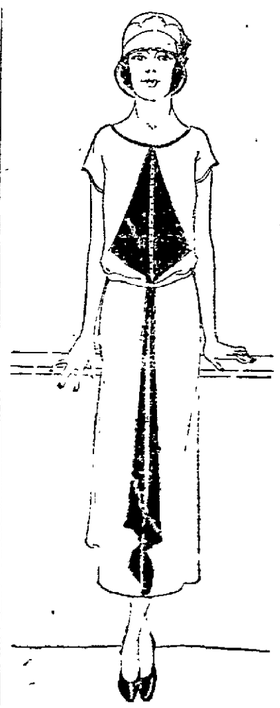

You apply this either with an eye-cup or with a dropper. Perhaps the latter way is the least wasteful. You should bathe your eyes with this twice a day. Be sure that the lotion gets to every part of your eye. Open and shut your eyelid so the lower lid may derive the full benefit from the wash.

Another treatment which helps to bring the clear, rested look back into your eyes is this:

Soak two small pieces of absorbent cotton, pieces big enough to cover your eyelid, in ice water. Close your eyes and lay the bits of cotton over your lids. Press them down gently into the corners so that they cover every part of your lid. You will find this more restful still if you lie flat upon your back on the bed. If you cannot do this, simply lean back in your chair for a few minutes. Remember that you have only one pair of eyes!

The Dull and Shiny Sides Contrast in This Frock of Black Charmeuse.

THE chic little frock of black satin or black charmeuse can not be overestimated in fashion importance for the present season.

Every woman should have at least one model of this type, and the sketch above is an ideal example. The black charmeuse turns its dull side out, and offers the smart contrast in front lapels which show the shiny side.

Tiny white pearl buttons placed close together down the front are the only note of contrast in color.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

NO ACTION ON FEW BIDS

LOWEST ON CARVED WORK IS $96,385.

Lahr and Herpolsheimer of Lincoln Bid Separately on Special Hardware and Light Fixtures.

The capitol commission was apparently somewhat amazed at bids on carved and ornamental wood work for the governor's apartments and the supreme court room in the new capitol when four proposals were received. The commission had made an allowance of $75,000 out of its funds for special woodwork, not including a bench for the court room. At the last moment it asked bidders to bid on the bench along with the other work. The lowest received was $96,385. The next highest was $113,249. The other two were not opened, one because it contained no certified check and the other because samples were not submitted.

No action was taken by the commission on these nor on bids for special hardware and upon electric light fixtures. The bids on special hardware and class A light fixtures were within the board's allowance. Governor Bryan, chairman of the commission, was absent on urgent official business and another meeting will be held to consider the bids opened. W. E. Hardy of Lincoln, W. H. Thompson of Grand Island and Roy Cochran, state engineer, were the board members present. Architect Bertram G. Goodhue of New York who drew the specifications upon which bids were based, was present with his assistant, W. L. Younkin.

Mr. Goodhue intimated that $85,000 ought to be enough for the special woodwork. Erving Casson-A. H. Davenport Co. of New York bid $96,385 and offered to finish it in seven months. In compliance with the specifications this firm proposed to have the carving done in its own shop by its own men under the firm's direction. This specification was for the purpose of preventing subleting work to inferior workmen.

M. Bartios of New York bid $113,245 on the woodwork, with a promise to finish the work in eight months. Eli Berman Co. of New York had a bid without a certified check. It was said to be higher than the other two, but was not read or considered by the commission. George M. Smith of Philadelphia had no samples and his bid was not opened.

Ornamental Hardware.

The Lahr Hardware company of Lincoln was the only bidder on special hardware. The firm bid $6,100 on hardware to be furnished by Sargent & Co. of New Haven, Conn. The outer pieces which will be hand engraved and gold plated are to be made by P. E. Guerin of New York. The bid is on special designs made by Architect Goodhue for hardware in the governor's offices, court room and other rooms which are to have specially designed fixtures.

Mr. Goodhue expressed surprise that there were not more bids on hardware. Mr. Hardy called attention to the fact that only two firms bid on hardware for the new section last year when four were expected. Mr. Lahr received the contract for the other hardware and is now the only bidder on specially designed pieces. The Lahr bid is within the board's allowance for this item. It had an allowance of $25,000 for all hardware. It has spent $16,000 and has $9,000 of the total allowance left.

Elextric Light Fixtures.

Edward L. Colwell Co. of New York bid $15,000 on class A electric light fixtures. It agreed to complete the work in one hundred and fifty days. This bid equals the board's allowance. No other firm bid on this class, tho a representative of Edwin Guth Co. of St. Louis said his firm would like to if it had time to prepare bid and samples. The Guth company bid $4,899.50 on class B light fixtures. The board has no specified allowance for this class of material. This bid was the lowest received. It made no reference to time required to complete the work.

H. Herpolsheimer Co. of Lincoln bid $5,225 on class B. This firm proposes to furnish fixtures made by the Crown Electric Manufacturing company. The bid proposed to have the work finished in 100 days.

Black & Boyd bid $7,650 on class B fixtures and the Reflector Light company of St. Louis bid $14,708.40, the work to be finished in six months. Architect Goodhue called attention to the great difference in bids on class B, the highest being about three times more than the lowest.

"When manufacturers differ so on can you expect an architect to estimate the cost of material," said Mr. Goodhue.

Harry B. Weiler, 1935 N, and Catherine Weiler, his wife, had "made up" since a complaint charging the former with assault and battery had been filed. Mrs. Weiler was in no mood to press the charge Tuesday afternoon, so Justice Stevens let the offender off with $1 and costs after he pleaded guilty.

Jack Davis, 1917 O, pleaded innocence to a charge of assault and battery when arraigned in Justice Hawes' court Tuesday afternoon and the case was continued. He was released on $200 bond. J. J. The warrant was signed by Mrs. Lucille Mayne. The case was continued to April 23 and he was released on $200 bond, William Niklaus going surety.

Kate Thompson, Eleventh and Charleston streets, is alleged to have "beaten up" Alex Weber, a youthful neighbor. She was released on $200 bond, George Thompson going surety.

Charles White filed a petition in district court Tuesday afternoon asking divorce from Mary White on grounds of desertion. They were married in Washington D. C. November 2, 1920. Mr. White states that he was obliged to leave their home there for a short period and that when he returned he found that she had sold their household goods, closed the house and disappeared.

One little item on Monday's pay roll grand to come before the county will read something like this: Election board payroll, 284 judges and clerks at $5 per head, $852. This represents the salary side of the cost of submitting and voting the Tractor company's proposal to amend the charter. Printing of election notice, election supplies, etc., added a few dollars to the total cost.

ROTARIANS' SONS ARE ENTERTAINED

Many Attend Annual Father and Son Banquet and Entertainment of the Rotary Club Tuesday Evening.

The annual father and son banquet of the Lincoln Rotary club was attend by over three hundred at the Lincoln hotel Tuesday evening. After the dinner entertainment was furnished in the form of novelty songs, stunts, music and speaking.

Rev. A. A. Brooks delivered the main address of the evening. He spoke of the duty of the father to his son and of some of the son's duties to his father. "Father's gave altogether too little time to their sons," Dr. Brooks said, "when in reality they should be a companion and pal, in every sense of the word." Children look to their fathers as heroes and we must try to live up to their ideals. He told the boys that they were living in a world that was rampant with opportunity and that they would carry the standard to heights that their fathers had never dreamed of.

During the dinner an orchestra furnished music and Fred Cardin gave several Indian dances and played Indian music on the violin. He danced in costume with a head gear of feathers, and all of the trimmings that go with the Indian make-up. A colored sextet sang several selections that brought bursts of applause from the young folks and their parents. Favors of oranges, toy balloons, squawkers, and hollow easter eggs filled with candy were given the boys. The room was decorated with the Rotary club emblems.

Following the dinner a tumbling stunt by H. H. Brainerd and Lloyd Scheineck was given under the direction of O. B. Anderson of the Y. M. C. A. Prizes ranging from boxes of candy to baseballs were given to the boys. Harvey Kendall was the toastmaster and the committee on arrangements consisted of: Burt Knapp, George Brow, Theodore Martin, Dr. Colburn, and E. V. Vessey.

NEGLECTED SMALL DETAIL

Frank Tague Didn't Remain Long Enough in Lincoln to Appear in the State Court.

Altho shot near unto death and bound over in federal court in the sum of $2,500, Frank Tague, of Clarks, Neb., neglected the little details of remaining in Lincoln for arraignment in state court on a booze charge. Following his shooting fray with officers on the D. L. D. highway over toward the northwest corner of the baseball field on the night of December 6, Tague remained in a local hospital under guard for some days. He was then arraigned in federal court and released on bond.

The arraignmeft at the time was largely for the purpose of getting out from under the cost of maintaining a guard at the hospital. There was a sort of understanding that he would be lined up in the state court when able to get up and about. It now appears that state officers were not certain as to the exact time of his departure. Constable Vorhies of Justice Stevens' court left Lincoln late Tuesday and expects to return with Tague. The constable first went to Norfolk to claim Clarence E. Saalfeld who is wanted in Lincoln, according to the official, for failure to pay alimony.

Amusements

Recital by Irene Faulder.

Miss Irene Faulder, pupil in violin of G. C. Menzendorf, was fortunate in having an orchestra with which to play the concerto at her recital for graduation from the University of Nebraska school of fine arts, Tuesday evening at the Temple. The lower floor of the theater was filled for the event with the exception of a very few seats. The audience was generous with applause, and the violinist received many gifts of flowers.

Miss Faulder is exceedingly talented. She played a long and difficult program with poise, fine tone and with maturity of effect. Some of her repose and sureness may be due to the fact that she has been playing in the university orchestra. That fact also accounts for the presence of the orchestra and its director, W. T. Quick, to play with the soloist in the Mendelssohn concerto. The four movements of the work as presented were a fine example of ensemble work to come from a student group. The soloist played with dignity and brilliance. In the other numbers Miss Faulder was accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Helen Faulder, in satisfactory style. The violinist's technical and interpretative grasp of the smaller compositions won for her much appreciative comment. The smoothness of her bowing and tone was particularly noted.

The program was carried out as follows:

Sonata, A major, Handel.
Concerto, E minor, Op. 64, Mendelssohn; accompanied by the university orchestra, W. T. Quick, director.
Air (On the G string), Bach, Reverie, Op. 22, No. 1, Vieuxtemps.
Tarboutin Chirois, Kreisler. Canto Amoroso, Sammartini-Elman. Berceuse, Arensky.
Romance, Op. 7, No. 1, Ryder. Spanish Dance, No. 8, Op. 26, Sarasate.

MAKE MEMORIAL DAY PLANS

Captain Ryan of Indiana to Deliver Address Here Decoration Day.

Captain Ryan is a world war veteran, an ex-national officer of the American Legion, and represented the country abroad when he was with Secretary of War Denby in Europe. He has made a study of the European situation before and after the war, especially the Ruhr situation, and it is only due to the fact that he is on his way to Los Angeles, that they are able to procure his services here, according to Mr Corrick.

The tentative program for Memorial day will be as follows:

Parade to the cemetery at 9 a. m. and decoration of the graves at 10 a. m. At noon the ladies of Farragut post will give a dinner at the First Christian church to which all members of the G. A. LOUP CITY, Neb., April 15.—Sheriff J. A. Thrailkill, accompanied by his deputy and seven state law enforcement officers, swooped down on the village of Ashton, eleven miles east of here, and raided five places, including three soft drink parlors. The officers were successful in four cases out of five, and seized several hundred bottles of beer, four gallons of whisky and one still.

In county court John J. Goc pleaded guilty to ten counts charging him with possessing intoxicating liquor. He was fined $1,000 and costs. He paid the costs and $500 on the fine and was released on his promise to pay the balance shortly.

Ray Ault pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession and was fined $100 and costs, which he paid. The officers said they found bottled beer in his soft drink place. Mike Kosmicki, a farmer, admitted he had three quarts of whisky and contributed $100 to the school fund. Vincent Czerwinski pleaded not guilty to the complaint that he had bottled beer in his soft drink parlor. His hearing was set for May 6. It is reliably reported that much of the highly prized beverage was destroyed when it was reported about town that the sleuths were near.

"In telling about my Tanlac experience, I feel that I am showing others the way to good health, for that is what Tanlac has meant to me," recently said Mrs. Grace Miller, popular young business woman, of 1617 P Street, Havelock, Nebr.

"Six years ago, my strength had dwindled away till I was almost too weak to keep going. My appetite was utterly gone and when I did venture to eat I suffered intensely from indigestion and nervousness.

"Tanlac gave me perfect relief from these troubles and I was soon eating and enjoying everything. I also gained several pounds and felt just fine. However, if my appetite and digestion ever show signs of wavering, I am going to take more Tanlac and have no doubt as to the results."

Work of Johnson And Sisler Feature First Games

BIG SHOW OPENERS ATTRACT MANY FANS

Walter Johnson's Shutout Eclipses Other Performances of Opening Day—Sisler Comes Back Strong.

BY HENRY L. FARRELL

NEW YORK, April 16.—With a total attendance of more than 217,000 at the eight opening games of the major league season, baseball started to live up to the pre-season "bigger and better" predictions.

New York with 45,000, Cincinnati with 35,747 and Detroit with 34,000 topped the list while Philadelphia was in the hole with a rather meagre 10,000.

The total attendance in the National league ran to approximately 105,000 while the American league topped it with 112,000.

Stadium Opening The Cause.

Opening game attendance last year exceeded yesterday's mark by 14,000 but the 1923 record was made possible by the immense crowd that turned out for the opening of the mammoth Yankee stadium.

Good baseball for so early in the season marked all the major league games and close finishes featured several. The Yanks beat the Red Sox with two runs in the ninth inning; the Cardinals beat the Cubs with three runs in the ninth inning and the Reds beat the Pirates with one run in the ninth.

Perhaps the biggest feature of the day was the shutout pitched for Washington against the Athletics by Walter Johnson and the comeback of the popular George Sisler, the new manager of the Browns.

Starting his eighteenth season in the major leagues, Johnson let the Athletics down without a run and with only four hits and he struck out eight batters.

Sisler got two hits in a pinch that drove in two runs and handled fifteen chances in the field without a wobble. If Sisler can have the good fortune to continue that kind of a game, the Browns will be a factor in the pennant race.

Giants Have Off Day.

It would be absurd to base any predictions upon the first game of the season, but the Giants did not thrill the New York fans with the form they showed against the Robins. The pitching was bad, the fielding bad and the base running stupid and terrible.

The power of the Red pitching staff was shown when Donohue was knocked out of the box by the Pirates and Tom Sheehan, one of the new pitchers was rushed to the rescue. He held the Pirates and the game was jerked out of the fire. Last year the Reds had no secondaries to send in when the going got bad for one of the regulars.

Cleveland, in having Shaute bumped for three winning runs in one inning by the Tigers, gave evidence of why the Indians were not picked to win the American league pennant.

Yanks Win In Ninth.

The Yanks showed some of the gameness that will be a big factor in their drive for the pennant when they got going in the ninth inning after having been blanked all the way and won the game from the Red Sox.

Bowling

French's 263, 265, and 193 scores for a 721 total was the high spot of the Capital City league matches rolled on the Lincoln alleys Tuesday night. French, who smashes the pins for the Capital Bindery five has been one of the most consistent bowlers in the league all season. His mark is a record on the Lincoln floor this year. The Capital Bindery, Fleming Jewels, and Ben Simon and Sons won the three matches played.

In a special match staged Monday evening, the Crete business men nosed out the Lincoln Alley ladies' team, 1993 to 1860. Mrs. Vleck was high for the losers with a 456 total. The scores:

Rocky Kansas is Only Legitimate Lightweight Title Contender Now

NEW YORK, April 16.—Benny Leonard laments the lack of lightweight opponents that may face him to graduate into the welterweight class. The champion's plea for sympathy is endorsed by leading promoters who want to employ Leonard but can't find a job for him.

There has been talk for more than a year about the necessity of building up some good lightweight challenger for an outdoor bout. Tex Rickard tried to hustle Louis Vicentini into the role, but he was stopped temporarily when he lost a decision to Johnny Shugrue.

Pal Moran, the New Orleans boy, measured up to the specifications of a candidate for a while, until he was beaten by the veteran Johnny Dundee.

Dundee claims that he is entitled to the first crack at Leonard, but his first duty is to defend his featherweight and junior lightweight titles.

In the general scramble it seems that Rocky Kansas, the little Buffalo Italian, has been overlooked.

Has Best of Claims

Kansas, perhaps has a more legitimate claim for another chance at the title than any other contender who has to be "built up" into a card.

Kansas has built himself up by beating practically every man in the class, with the exception of Leonard.

His best role in recent years was that of a built-up wrecker. When Willie Jackson was worked almost up to a fight with Leonard two years ago, Kansas beat him and spoiled the plans. When Tendler had worked up into the dominating position among the contenders, Kansas beat him and set him back and when Charley White had been advanced within a step of a title bout, Kansas beat him and removed him almost entirely from consideration.

Kansas knocked out Richie Mitchell when he was in his prime, and he beat Sailor Freidman and every other lightweight of importance in the class.

In his Benton Harbor fight with Leonard, he broke his arm in the third round, and he continued five rounds before his manager, Dan Rogers tossed in the towel and made him stop.

Just recently he had Jack Bernstein on the floor and badly beaten, when he hurt his arm and, even with that handicap, he earned a draw.

Is Last of List

Granting that Leonard is truthful when he says he can still make the weight, Kansas is the only legitimate lightweight among the established contenders. He has always been a recognized lightweight.

Jack Zivic and Sammy Mandell, of course, are legitimate lightweights, but they are not yet ready for the title. In another year they will be real rivals for Leonard, but they haven't the claim to a championship bout now that Kansas possesses.

Kansas intends to challenge Leonard through the New York Boxing Commission, and it seems that his claim should be recognized. He tried last summer to get a good shot with Leonard, but his challenge and his forfeit was returned by the commission, because there was a previous one on file.

If Leonard does jump into the welterweight class it will be for the reason that he prefers to fight above the lightweight limit and not because he has no competition in his own class.

English Prospect Flops

Isaac Ingleton, the largest of the "hopes" that Tex O'Rourke found in his quest for an English contender for the heavyweight championship, seems to be the worst of the lot. He was stopped in his first bout and in a recent start he was badly beaten by Charlie Smith, an unknown novice.

British critics, who are looking most seriously upon the unique venture of O'Rourke, are ready to admit that time and money has been wasted upon Ingleton who, because of his size, was regarded as the most promising.

William Prestage, another of O'Rourke's pupils, is now regarded as the best in the camp. He won his first public bout and in his second appearance he stopped a big army fighter named Smith with a couple of punches.

O'Rourke is working patiently with his school and he is not making the mistake of rushing them and trying to make them fighters with a few lesons.

Best of Amateur Boxers

Commenting upon the Olympic boxing matches, a critic in London paper remarked:

"If Eddie Eagan, the Rhodes scholar, is started by the United States in the light heavyweight or heavyweight classes, it would be wise for other nations to save the expense of transporting any boxers for the class in which he enters. He is the greatest amateur boxer in the world."

SPORT TABLOIDS.

Chicago—Wisconsin defeated the University of Chicago here yesterday in their first baseball encounter of the season. The score was 8 to 6.

Cincinnati—Speaking by radio here Tuesday night, Jack Hendricks new manager of the Reds, predicted his team will win the championship of the National league and also the world championship this year. Tuesday's opening day attendance here of 35,747 paid, broke all previous records for Redland field by over 3,000.

Scraps about Scrappers

Boston—Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight, won a ten round decision from Sailor Friedman, former Chicago lightweight. They fought as welterweights.

New York—If Georges Carpentier is unable to get a ring engagement here on July 4, the Queensborough club will offer him a bout against Mike McTigue, light heavyweight champion, the club announced.

New York—In his first public workout of four rounds against two sparring partners, Quintin Romero, Chilean heavyweight champion, failed to make an impression upon a number of boxing critics. He seems to possess a fair punch but knows nothing about boxing.

New York—Tommy Ryan, Mc Keesport, won a ten round decision from Harry Gordon, New York. Gordon was floored in the seventh round but didn't take the count.

Youngstown, O.—Rosey Stoy, Lancaster, Pa., and Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., went twelve hard rounds to a draw here last night.

Numerals Warded To Cross Country Men

Numerals awarded cross country candidates were announced by the Nebraska athletic office Wednesday. They go to Ross, McCartney, Jackson, Ready, Guire, Wallin, Howard, Rogers, Lewis and Fairchild.

A New National Park.

Certainly no one will dispute the suggestion that provision should be made for more national parks and game preserves, writes Jay P. Garlough, editor of Sportsman's Digest in a recent editorial. Nor, we believe, will anyone protest the feasibility of locating one or more such parks in the eastern part of the United States.

The automobile, and with it the tremendous interest in motor-camping, is taking additional thousands out into the open every year. The question "where to go" is becoming more difficult each year, especially for those who desire to get clear away from the familiar signs of civilization. Particularly is it puzzling in the eastern states, where we find the greater part of our population, and where there is at present but one national park.

In view of the foregoing facts, the movement, now on foot, to establish a forest reserve and game preserve in the Smoky Mountain region is most commendable. Here, easy of access from the entire eastern section, is a region admirably adapted to park purposes. Wooded hillsides where game will flourish, sparkling mountain streams filled with trout and other fishes, and scenery to delight the heart of every nature-lover are awaintaing the governmental action that will set them aside as a great playground.

Chicago—Funeral services for Joseph H. "Doc" White, veteran swimming coach of the University of Chicago who died Monday night, will be held tomorrow.

Such popularity must be deserved

BIG HITS don't just happen. Popularity doesn't come ready-made.

In pictures, plays or products, success must be built on something REAL.

Taste convinced them. That's why men are turning by thousands from other cigarettes to Chesterfield.

Beatrice Half-mile Relay Team Grand Champions

HASTINGS AND TECH WIN OTHER EVENTS

Omah Medley Team Turns in Lowest Time While Dick Newman's Runners Are Low in Mile Relay.

The grand champion of Nebraska high school relay teams was developed this year at Beatrice, returns from Coach Schulte's annual home course relay events show. The Beatrice team stepped the half-mile event in the unusually good time of 1 minute 32 3-5 seconds. This entitles the Beatrice team to the trip to the Kansas relays offered each year by E. L. Long for the best individual team.

The Beatrice team is composed of Klein, Roland, Jark and Kenagy. Coach Garrett developed it.

Two Other Teams Entered.

Two other Nebraska teams will be entered in the Kansas relays. Hastings will be placed in the mile and Omaha Tech in the medley relays of the high school division. Hastings, with Greenslit, Smiley, Greenfield and Mauser running, turned in the best time of the home course events for the mile with a mark of 3 minutes 42 3-5 seconds while Omaha Tech with Reddenbough, Quackenbush, Swanson and Atkinson running, was low in the medley event with 3 minutes 49 1-10 seconds.

There were over twice as many teams entered this year than competed last year.

One Mark is Lowered.

The half-mile mark was the only one to fall, however. Broken Bow's marks in the mile and medley still stand. Broken Bow won the trip to Kansas last year. Minatare won the half mile last year in 1:35 1-5. This year's results:

| | Half | Mile | Medley |

LITTLE LESSONS IN GOLF

PLAYING FOR SLICE

RIGHT FOOT 6 TO 10 INCHES FORWARD - KEEP WEIGHT ON IT TILL BALL IS STRUCK. PLAY BALL OFF LEFT TOE.

OPEN FACE OF CLUB BY TURNING LEFT ELBOW UNDER AT TOP OF SWING. HIT ACROSS LINE OF PLAY

What are the important points in playing for a slice?

Answered by
WILLIAM MELHORN.

"The St. Louis Youngster" whose battering courage and sound golf enable him to finish well up in all the tournaments he enters.

To begin with, place your right foot a little more forward and your left foot back so your right foot is about six to ten inches closer to ball than the left. Play the ball off the left toe. Keep the weight on your right foot till ball is struck. Open the face of club by turning left elbow well under at top of swing and hit across the line of play. You'll get your slice all right by doing this.

STRAYER LOSES TO OMAHA FIST ARTIST

Buddy Chambers Has Shade in Main Go—Coleman and Novak Knocked Out—Hasey Wins From Bush.

TUESDAY NIGHT'S RESULTS.

"Hank" Hasey, Lincoln, 139, won a decision over Pete Bush, 139, Lincoln; six rounds.

"Kid" Clark, Lincoln, 151 1-2, knocked out Charlie Novak, 143 1-2, Havelock; first round.

Charlie Long, 150 3-4, Omaha, knocked out Larry Coleman, 152, St. Paul; second round.

"Buddy" Chambers, 133, Omaha, won a decision over "Bat" Strayer, 133, Lincoln; ten rounds.

"Buddy" Chambers of Omaha, who claims the lightweight championship of the southwest, won a ten-round decision over "Bat" Strayer of Lincoln, in the main event of Billy Hale's national guard show staged at the city auditorium Tuesday night. In the semi-windup, Charlie Long, colored, Omaha, knocked out Larry Coleman of St. Paul in the second stanza.

Strayer and Chambers both mixed fiercely at the start of the main go, with Bat carrying the fight. Chambers landed several left jabs to the head while Strayer had the best of the in-fighting. The round was even.

Both men fought cautiously at the start of the second frame. Strayer missed several lefts while Chambers hit the Lincoln boy with easy jabs to the body.

Chambers Uses His Left.

Chambers got his left to working in the third and kept Strayer on the jump. The Omaha boy used a jumping style of leading which seemed to bother "Bat." The round was about even, Strayer landing several blows to the head as the gong sounded.

Strayer rushed from his corner in the fourth and hammered Chambers to the ropes. The metropolis battler recovered, however, and hooked several lefts to the head as the round ended. Chambers was making Strayer miss and earned the round by a hair.

Chambers took the fifth round by landing several effective lefts to the face and body. Strayer was having trouble landing his blows. Chambers rushed Strayer and backed away when "Bat" threatened.

The seventh round was about even. Both men were tiring and neither landed solidly. Strayer and Chambers swung viciously, both trying hard to land a knockout punch.

Eighth Round Was Even.

The eighth was even. Both men were good at in-fighting. Chambers landed several hookers on the break while "Bat" was best in the clinches.

The ninth was a rip-snorter. Strayer rushed from his corner and drove "Buddy" to the ropes. The two leather pushers socked and mauled each other but neither man landed a square smack. Strayer held the advantage because of his rushing tactics. Chambers took several hard punches on the head but was fresh when time was called.

The tenth was about even with the Lincoln boy having a slight advantage. Both glove artists clinched at the gong and Chambers landed several blows to the head on the break. Strayer forced the fighting but the Omaha lad kept his distance. Referee Shea's decision to Chambers was not popular with the crowd. Many spectators thought that the Lincol battler earned a draw.

Long Scores Knockout.

The semi-windup ended with another knockout to Omaha Charlie Long's credit. Coleman started the mixing but Long clearly demonstrated his superiority before the initial round was over. Long landed several blows to Coleman's body and held the advantage when the gong sounded. Charlie waded in savagely in the second and had the St. Paul boy on his knees for a count of three after a minute's scrapping. Coleman arose apparently dazed, and was bleeding about the mouth. Long stepped back and measured his opponent and a stinging right sent Coleman to the canvas for the count.

Charlie Novak, the pride of Havelock, kissed the mat in the first round after "Kid" Clark had smeared him with lefts and rights to the face. Novak went down for a count of five in the first minute of the fracas. Clark sent a hard right to the jaw and Novak saw the lights go out after one minute and ten seconds of battling. Novak had to be helped from the ring.

In the opening prelim, "Hank" Hasey won a six-round decision in a slam bank affair over Pete Bush, Lincoln.

SOLONS READY FOR WICHITA BALL TEAM

Rasmussen And Conkey Will Probably Be Battery—Young, Kinsella and Dudley Report—Big Crowd Expected.

WICHITA, Kas., April 15—"We are all ready to go," was the statement of Manager Howard Wakefield, here today. The Lincoln club manager was optimistic about the outlook, which on the surface, is far from cheery. Three new players reporting here today made things look considerably better for the new Solons, however. Kinsella, outfielder, Young, shortstop, and Dudley, pitcher, from the American association, brightened up things for Wakefield's club.

Several Vets In Lineup.

The Solons will line up with several tried Western leaguers. There is a gap at first base yet, which will be filled when the veteran, Frank Metz, reports. Metz is on his way, according to Wakefield. McDonald at third, and Hamilton at second, have been good performers in this circuit, as has Eddie Moore, and Horace Milan in the outfield. None is a fence buster, however. Kinsella, the new outfielder, comes recommended as a fast and reliably sound ball player.

The catching staff seems to be fairly fixed, but more pitching strength is needed. The chief weakness of the club right now is the lack of practice, which will probably hurt the teamwork of the club. Most of the players are strangers to each other. With a new manager and representing a new town in the league, it will probably take a little time to get settled sufficiently to give the veteran clubs in the southern end of the loop a battle.

Wichita Not In Good Shape.

Wichita has also been handicapped by a short training season and its pitchers are not in shape. Wichita has, in the main, a new club, which is not tried as to Western league caliber.

Plans for opening day call for a half-holiday, a big parade and features at the ball park, with Governor Davis due to pitch the first ball.

The probable Lincoln lineup: Moore, cf; Hamilton, 2b.; Milan, lf.; McDonald, 3b. Kinsella, rf, Snyder, 1b; Conkey, c; Young, ss; Rasmussen, p.

Police received a call from 2058 R about midnight Tuesday, saying that a prowler, slim and wearing a grey cap, was in the neighborhood. An investigation revealed nothing. At 1:15 a. m. Wednesday morning another call came from the place. The prowler had attempted to open the back door it was said. Members of the shotgun squad who responded were unable to find any trace of the man.

Mary E. Bair, sixty, who runs a rooming house at 1448 O was fined $100 and costs in police court Wednesday morning on the charge of permitting a building under her control to be used for purposes of prostitution. State Purchasing Agent J. R. Farris of the code department of finance will open bids Thursday on one car load of gasoline for the use of the department of public works. The last car bought for this department came from Casper, Wyo., from the Standard Oil company and cost less than 11 cents a gallon. Bids now may be around 13 cents. Oil companies were asked to present bids on gasoline delivered at Lincoln but they are quoting prices at refineries. The state must pay the freight.

Railroads and large corporations are members and take an active interest.

One of the plans Mayor Zehrung has been considering and which he hopes to work out by the end of the year calls for a wading pond in Antelope park. A large pool that would be not more than twelve or fourteen inches deep, with cement bottom and sides, will be built if the money to build it can be found. In winter this can be used for skating and in summer it will make a great wading pool for the little folks. By the use of the same amount of water a much greater surface can be covered, giving a large skating area and plenty of wading space for hundreds of children.

Another vacation church school was added on Tuesday night to the list of prospective schools when a joint committee from the two churches in Belmont met to consider plans. The summer program of the Lincoln council of churches was presented by Miss Eleanora Miller and Miss Lura Aspinwall of the education committee. Matters of local leadership and financing were discussed informally, and everyone present agreed that Belmont needs a school and that they would proceed with the promoting of the project. The Methodist and Congregational adult congregations will meet together on the morning of April 27 at the Butler avenue church at which time the location of the school will be determined.

busily a long typewritten document with bent head.

Dr. Wilson declared his opinion that Thaw had reached the age where sexual impulse was "waning." He was pressed to say what he thought might happen if Thaw were released.

"Did you ask him about beating young girls—one of them so severely that when he was thru the pieces of her shirt waist had to be picked out of her flesh?"

"No."

"Did you ask him about the Gump matter?"

"Yes, but he evaded the question."

(Thaw's alleged assault upon the girls occurred as long ago as 1905.)

The witness said he thought there was no truth in this charge.

Gray ripped into the witness with all the fire that has established his reputation as a great trial lawyer, attacking the doctor's argumentative attitude.

Gray demanded that the doctor assume that there were seven instances of insanity in Thaw's family in giving his opinion on his sanity.

Gray forced the witness to admit that he had interviewed no one but Thaw himself in determining him sane.

"If you knew of a man performing acts of sexual perversion who was under your control, what would you do?"

"I don't know."

"Wouldn't you take away the opportunity?"

The witness was forced to admit that he would—take away Thaw's rabbits for instance.

Something of what is in store for Thaw when he goes on the stand was forecast by Gray's blasting attack on the witness.

Judge John Patterson, Thaw's counsel, took the witness back in hand for a discussion of heredity, suicide and disease, during which Dr. Wilson declared Thaw bore no traces of inherent insanity and that his attempted suicide was not a sign of unsound mind.

home. Mr. Zakem said he had often seen Wadeia with Dr. Rizk in his car, alone or with two other girls, before and after the separate maintenance decree obtained by Mrs. Rizk last winter.

Assad Zakem, borther of the other witnesses, told a somewhat rambling story, in which he declared the doctor and Wadeia were in the habit of conducting themselves very familiarly toward each other, but he never said anything about it to them. He said Wadeia lived at his house six or seven months after coming to this country, and part of the time worked at his restaurant. He thought the girl was about sixteen, but couldn't say with any certainty. He didn't know his own age or his brother's, explaining that they reckoned time differently in the old country. He was with some difficulty restrained from telling everything his mother, his brother, his wife and various other relatives had told him about the fatter under discussion.

On the strength of records brought into court, it was stipulated that Wadeia Zakem wired her brother Joseph last July 2 from New York taht she had arrived and wanted $60 and that he forwarded the money next day by Postal Telegraph.

Dr. Rizk was represented at the hearing by Herbert Baird, Marcus Potect and James W. Kinsinger. District Attorney Stewart is prosecuting for the government, the complaint being based on information gathered by a special agent.

TO BE ARRAIGNED MONDAY

Three Additional Defendants in City National Case Will Be in Federal Court.

Elmer C. Hammond, W. S. Jones and Loyd Winship are to be arraigned in federal court Monday afternoon on charges of conspiring to violate a federal statute by misapplying $250,000 of City National bank funds. The case is the same one in which the demurrer of L. B. Howey and L. J. Dunn is to be argued the same day. The five men were indicted in January of last year and the alleged transactions occurred in September 1920, in connection with the business of the Nebraska Aircraft Corporation, the Hebb Motors company, the Sheridan Park Investment company and the Standard Securities Corporation.

Mr. Howey and Mr. Dunn entered a plea in abatement a few weeks ago, alleging that the indictment was based on incompetent evidence, and when the government's remurrer to this plea was sustained, filed a demurrer of their own in turn. It is this which will be argued Monday.

GREATER LINCOLN GROUP SHOULD FORM

Adrian Newens Favors Picked Committee to Foster City's Growth, in Address to Pathfinders.

"Lincoln's greatest need now," said Adrian Newens in an address before the Pathfinedsr club at the chamber of commerce Wednesday noon," is an invisible Greater Lincoln committee, a group of picked men to foster the city's interests and made Lincoln a greater city, as did similar committees in Des Moines and New York City."

Mr. Newens speaking from personal experience, stated that when Des Moines had a population of, but 65,000 she was scarcely able to get along. Paving was needed and better street lights were necessary but the city was unable to supply these demands. At this time a Greater Des Moines committee was formed and factories, stores and industries were instituted that sent the city soaring toward success.

"The I and the Me" was the formal subject of Mr. Newens' talk. He sought to analyze psychologically the various reactions of the inner ego or self to external stimuli. The inner ego, Mr. Newens explained, is the fountain head of all initiative, it is always striving for constructive accomplishment.

Very often the outer man is unable to withstand the criticism of the acts prompted by the inner self and the result is a civic club that shifts criticism to the organization and enables the individual to give outlet to his pent up ideas for betterment.

A short musical program, preceding Mr. Newens' address was given by the Wesleyan university male quartet, composed of Clinton Swengel, first tenor; Ray Fager, second tenor; Harry Vedder, baritone and Jean Bader, bass. Miss Sarah Marshall directed and accompanied the young men on the piano.

The Wesleyan male quartet entertained pleasingly with several selections.

CONDIT'S CAUSTIC COMMENT

Nebraska Would Be Dry If Omaha Were Not a Part of It.

FREMONT, Neb., April 16.—The first step of Elmer E. Thomas, recently appointed prohibition director for Nebraska, in mopping up the booze in the state was to, it seems, tell newspapers how dry Douglas and certain counties, not including Dodge county, were at the present time.

Reading his reports Sheriff Condit who has gained a reputation for his activities against liquor, admitted he was somewhat peeved.

Sheriff Condit said, "What can he expect of us up here when a 'pipe line' of booze is running out of Omaha? In an hour Omaha booze can be delivered in Fremont. Take Omaha out of the state of Nebraska and the state would be pretty dry."

NATIONAL CHANGES INTO STATE BANK

Where Two National Banks Formerly Existed at Pilger There Are Now Two State Banks.

The Farmers National bank of Pilger has surrendered its charter and has received a charter under the state banking department. It will hereafter be known as the Farmers State bank of Pilger. It retains its former amount of capital stock, $50,000, and also contributes $2,891.40 to the state guaranty bank fund. Its officers remain the same as in the past. hTe directors are J. R. Chace, Charles H. Chace, J. Doty, Walter R. Chace, F. W. Scherer and Robert Larson.

Until recently there were two national banks and no state banks at Pilger. One of the national failed and is in the hands of a receiver. A state bank was soon thereafter organized and obtained a charter. Now the other national bank has been converted into a state bank under the guaranty fund. When the new state bank was chartered the organizers had knowledge that the remaining national bank was to become a state bank. Secretary Knudson of the banking department said there was no misunderstanding about this arrangement on the part of anyone interested in the formation of the new state bank.

SEIZED AND THEN SOLD

which Francis Burton Harrison, then governor general of the Philippines, acted as agent, Storck testified.

Storck said that despite his repeated reports to the justice department no attention was paid to the alleged irregularities and no prosecutions have ever been brought.

Charges that the private secretary of Governor Harrison proposed to German prisoners interned in the islands that they could be released if they would agree to sell their property were also made by Storck.

Storck testified that Kern paid Joseph F. Guffey of Pittsburgh, former democratic national committeeman, $10,000 in 1920 with the understanding that he was to aid in the withdrawal of liquor from bonded warehouses. He said his investigation shorwed that the deal fell thru because "the change of policy" of the prohibition officials.

Never Pressed Suit.

Storck in answer to questions by Senator Wheeler said that his records of investigation of the Bosch case were complete but the attorney gentral has never pressed the suit.

"How much could the government recover in that case?"

"At least $1,000,000."

"And on the Old Hickory case?"

"I am on record as saying $5,000,000 could be recovered. Others say between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000."

"And no prosecutions have been started in either case?"

"No."

Asked if he thought that John W. H. Crim, former assistant attorney general, was "in earnest" in the prosecution of war fraud cases, Storck replied emphatically "he certainly was."

"But he was blocked," he continued. "Every time Crim would get a case worked up, the case would be taken out of his hands"

Storck then testified that the property of a German tobacco company in the Philippines was sold by the alien property custodian, with Francis Burton Harrison, former governor general of the islands, as acting agent to a group at such a "raw price" that President Wilson ordered the sale set aside. He said that later the same group bid in his property for an even lower price.

The books of the alien property custodian show a loss of $449,000 on the sale, Storck said.

As Storck continued to reel off alleged crooked deals in alien property in the Philippines, Senator Jones, Washington, asked where he got his facts.

"All from the records of the alien property custodian." said Storck.

Freed If Property Sold.

Storck said that Fred Berry, confidential secretary to former Governor General Harrison, went to a German internment camp in 1918 and told the prisoners they could be released if they would agree to sell their property. He said a clique, led by a Philippine bank, organized a system of "second sales" of the German property which resulted in huge frauds.

There were so many embezzlements in the bank, Storck said, that he advised Crim that it was unsafe to keep the alien trusts there. He said that Archibald Harrison, brother of the governor general was interested in the bank.

Storck said that scores of Germans in the Philippines were forced to "sign on the dotted line" and sell their property to the Philippine clique in order to get out of internment camps.

"In other words, they were blackmailed?" said Wheeler.

"Yes."

STATE ISSUES REPORT BOOK

SUPREME COURT CASE RECORD BEING DISTRIBUTED.

Higher Costs of Printing Make It a Losing Venture, But Justified as Official Publication of Decisions.

No. 109 of the series of Nebraska reports of cases decided by the supreme court has just appeared from the printer's hands and is being distributed by H. C. Lindsay, clerk of that tribunal. The state pays for 1,000 copies, and loses money by the transaction. Mr. Lindsay has a list of 214 lawyers who are regular subscribers for the reports, and these are supplied by express. Another list of 221 volumes is made up of the distributive and exchange service. Forty-seven other states get out reports, and each sends Nebraska a free copy. Nebraska reciprocates by sending each of them a volume. The free list consists of supreme, district and county judges and state officers.

The remainder of the volumes printed are sold to casual purchasers. Many lawyers delay their purchase until they come to Lincoln and Lincoln lawyers save express charges by calling for them in person when they want them. In this way and in the course of time all but a few of the volumes are sold.

The state has financed these publications for most of the years. The first two volumes were got out by a Chicago publishing house and the third by a Des Moines printer. The state took off the latter's hands all he had unsold. Since then it has printed the reports itself. It sells them at $1.50 a volume, which is below cost.

The West Publishing company of Minneapolis gets out a book that contains Nebraska decisions, and has a large clientele among Nebraska lawyers because of the use of advance sheets. It gets the Nebraska decisions in their hands before the state gets enough decisions together to make a volume of its own. Its book, however, is not an official publication, while the Nebraska Report is taken by the court as authority because of its careful editing at the hands of H. P. Stoddart, official reporter.

CO-EDS ON THE DEFENSIVE

Southern Methodist University Girls Resent Slurs of Outlaw Fraternity Sheet.

DALLAS, Tex., April 16.—Co-education was on the defensive at Southern Methodist university today. Girl students sought revenge for attacks upon them in the "Dinkey," an outlaw fraternity magazine, as federal and university officials investigated a "wilderness" party staged by the editors in celebration of issuance of the publication.

Commenting on an editorial which said the co-eds were "painted sepulchers of abomination," Margaret Tilly, leading co-ed, said:

"It's an insult—and every bit untrue.

"The Dinkey was published by a gang of booze drinking reprobates who don't rate a look from a decent co-ed.

"When they threw their party out at Savage lake they picked their dates off the streets because they knew that university women would not go with them.

"We have positive evidence that not a single co-ed attended the affair."

"It's disgraceful—the boys should be prosecuted!" Mrs. S. J. Hay, dean of women, declared of "the Dinkey."

"It was gross libel. There is no punishment severe enough for the boys who published that nasty sheet—they should be prosecuted.

"Some of our girls may be thoughtless—and risk their dignities by attending parties unchaperoned—but they are all good, Christian girls. 'The Dinkey' was the most awful thing I ever read—I had trouble reading it, it was so shocking. So many of our best girls were brazenly insulted." Mrs. Hay stated.

Mrs. Hay denied there was any promiscuous "boodling" (synonym for spooning) at S. M. U. "The Dinkey" charged co-eds took part in "boodling contests" wherein they made the rounds of the men on the party and then voted on the "champion boodler."

The tournament will be held on the high school courts, which will be worked into good condition for playing by the time the tournament is to be played. Seventeen boys have registered for the golf tournament to be held at the same time on the Antelope course. A golf tournament has never been held before by the high school, altho there have been many tennis tournaments.

A zoology club has been organized in the high school for the purpose of furthering interest in the study of animal and insect life and to encourage work by students aside from and in addition to the regular class work. Field trips are being planned on which the students will visit various local points at which interesting zoological specimens may be found.

The club is being sponsored by Miss Adelheit Dettman, teacher of zoology. The officers for the ensuing semester are Jerrold Kohn, president, William Brown, vice president, Lyra Tait, secretary, and Mabel Shatpeack, editor.

Jack Straw, a [illegible] comedy presented by the [illegible] in the high school auditorium recently broke all records for junior plays according to a report made Tuesday. The amount taken in was $511.25, over twenty-eight dollars more than the receipts of "Young America" presented last year by the class of '24. "Young America" and "Jack Straw" are the only junior plays ever presented two nights. The success of the junior play even exceeded that of the senior play. "The Admirable Crichton," in financial returns. This is attributed to the increase in advertising, which was made a more important feature than before.

Forty-six girls have signed up for the dancing classes which are to be held each Monday and Wednesday at the close of school in the girls gymnasium. Work will soon be begun on the May Festival dance, according to Mae Seeley, instructor.

A meeting of senior girls was held during home room period Tuesday. A questionaire was filled out which asked information about graduation day dresses to be worn by the girls who graduate in June. The questions were what the material of the dresses was to be; whether silk, cotton or linen, and what the price was expected to be. The question was also asked as to whether the outfit was to be ready-made or home-made and if home-made whether the girl herself would make it.

The Household Arts club met at the close of school Tuesday in room 120. A candy sale for the stadium benefit was planned for April 25 at the matinee given by the Mummers club.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

The Chinese restaurant on O street was raided by Sergeant Shell and Patrolman Harr who returned to the police station with three cases of bottled beer and two scared Chinamen, who were selling liquor without a city license.

When the Sunday society page was adorned with a picture, which was seldom, it was of a new fashion in Paris or the countess of Selkirk or some equally distant subject.

The friends of the First Nebraska regiment met at the senate chamber and passed resolutions requesting President McKinley to cause the honorable discharge of the boys at Manila at the earliest possible moment. Ten of the twelve companies were represented and the following formed the resolution committee: Ellen D. Goodwin, York; B. B. Broady, Fullerton, S. S. Peters, Beatrice, F. F. Farrell, Lincoln, Miss Ella Robertson, Madison; S. R. Seward, Geneva; S. A. Cearles, Nelson; L. C. Foss, Bennett; Mrs. C. E. White, Omaha; Mrs. E. F. DeVoe, Broken Bow.

The "eel-skin" of "lily-bell" skirt was in vogue. It had five gores, fit neatly more than half way down and then flared out sharply.

Mrs. S. M. Benedict, well known in religious and social circles, died in Lincoln.

Declares Jake Never Told Her Any of His "Republican Secrets;" Papers Were Burned Up Months Ago.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Mrs. Georgia Hamon Rohrer, widow of the late Jake Hamon, slain, Oklahoam politician and oil millionaire, today defied the senate oil investigating committee to force her to testify.

When John L. Oros, deputy United States marshal located Mrs. Rohrer after ten days' search, and by a ruse served a forthwith subpoena, Mrs. Rohrer indignantly declared:

"The former attorney general didn't pay any attention to their old forthwith subpoenaes and I'm just as independent as he ever was. The senators down there are acting like a lot of school boys."

Mrs. Rohrer was found at the Allied Arts club, and Oros gained entrance by posing as a lover of art.

"What nerve," exclaimed Mrs. Rohrer.

"Well, I'm not going," she declared.

"I've always been a good democrat and Jake never told me any of his republicn secrets. And as for the papers the committee wants, well, they were burned up months and months ago."

CHOOSE OIL OR DOLLARS

Statement at White House by Presidential Commission on Oil Reserves.

WASHINGTON, April 16. — "The choice between oil an dollars has to be made," a statement issued today at the white house by the presidential commission on oil reserves recently appointed by President Coolidge declared.

The statement, which outlines the full policy of conservation to be followed by the commission, was issued immediately following a meeting between President Coolidge and the members of the commission, Dr. George Otis Smith, director of the geological survey, chairman, Admiral Hilary P. Jones, of the general board of the navy, and R. D. Bush of San Francisco.

HIS VETO IS NOT LIKELY

COOLIDGE PROBABLY TO SIGN JAP EXCLUSION BILL.

Senate's Action, Following That of House Expected to Deter President From Disapproving the Measure.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Congress has served notice on the administration of its determination to exclude Japanese from the United States in such terms that it was considered unlikely here today that President Coolidge would veto the bill containing the exclusion provision.

The senate's action in putting the drastic house exclusion provision in the senate bill without even the formality of a record vote, coming on top of the house action of passing its boill by a vote of more than four to one was expected to deter the president from disapproving the measure.

Secretary of State Hughes will confer with the president on his return from New York today but despite Hughes' profound opposition to the exclusion clause, there were no authoritative indications that he would counsel a veto. Overwhelming support obtained by the opponents of Japanese exclusion indicates sufficient strength to pass the bill over any veto and officials hardly believe that Hughes and the president will risk opening a breach between themselves and congress over the matter. Mr. Coolidge has been warned by Senator Lodge against doing so.

The senate was finally to dispose of the immigration bill today. With the Japanese question decided, the fight will center around the quota basis. Republicans are committed to a one per cent quota based on the census of 1910. Democrats seek to base it on the 1890 census as the house bill provides.

As soon as the bill is passed, it will go to confeernce with the house where differences between the senate and house bills will be ironed out, after which it will be put in the hands of the president.

ONE SMALL ORCHARD PAYS

Burt County Farmer Tells of His Success in Producing Marketable Apples.

Alfred J. Peterson of Oakland has sold over $200 worth of apples in each of the last two years from his farm orchard of about three-fourths of an acre, he told E. H. Hoppert, state extension agent in horticulture, who visited Burt county recently to conduct some pruning demonstrations scheduled by County Extension Agent Fouts. This profit comes as an addition to the benefits of all home grown fruit that the family can use. No fancy price was obtained either year, most of the apples being sold for $1 a bushel. He has about forty trees which are twenty years old now in his orchard.

Orchard demonstrations conducted by the agricultural extension service in that neighborhood five years ago started Mr. Peterson to pruning and spraying his trees. He has kept up both practices ever since and believes that this accounts for his profits. The heavy sod in the orchard is being broken up this spring in an attempt to increase the size of the apples that are produced. Mr. Peterson has always used the orchard for pasture for two or three litters of pigs during the summer and the pigs got all the windfalls.

The trees in this orchard are too thick even now after some of the varieties have died. All of the Ben Davis and Gano trees are dead at less than twenty years of age. Mr. Peterson has had a similar experience with these two varieties that many other Nebraska farmers have had. Examples of these small paying farm orchards like this one prove that many more farmers could grow their own fruit very profitably. Selection of the most adaptable varieties, proper planting, and care in pruning and spraying are the important points to be considered in handling a home orchard of about this size.

BANKING—II. Types of Banking Institutions.

THE foreign business man visiting American cities is immediately struck by the multiplicity of banking institutions. Other nations have the branch banking system, a few banks with a great many branches. In the United States there are nearly 31,000 banking institutions ranging in size from the small country bank to the mammoth institutions occupying sky-scrapers in our larger cities.

The 31,000 banks in America may be classified in various ways. Thus, some are predominantly commercial in character while others are predominantly investment. A commercial bank (such as the National Bank of Commerce in New York) is primarily interested in financing the marketing of goods and the production of consumption goods, while investment banks (such as building and loan associations) place their funds for relatively long periods of time in some capital improvement, such as houses, railroads, &c. To help clarify some of the complexities of this problem we have inserted the following table which aims to catalog the chief types of banking institutions found in the United States. Some of these will be discussed in greater detail in later lessons.

|---|---|---|
| Primarily Commercial Institutions: | | |
| National banks, i. e., the National City Bank of New York, are incorporated under a Federal law passed in 1863 | 8,241 | $21,512 |
| State banks, i. e., the Bank of Manhattan Company of New York City, are incorporated under the banking laws of the forty-eight States | 18,043 | 14,163 |
| Federal Reserve banks, created by special act of Congress, approved by President Wilson on Dec. 23, 1913 (See Lesson III.) | 12 | 5,038 |
| Commercial and Investment Institutions: | | |
| Trust companies, i. e., the Guaranty Trust Company of New York City, are incorporated under the laws of the forty-eight States | 1,643 | 9,499 |
| Federal intermediate credit banks, created by special act of Congress, approved by President Harding on March 2, 1923. (See Lesson V.) | 12 | 100 |

|---|---|---|
| Primarily Investment Institutions: | | |
| Federal land banks, created by special act of Congress, approved by President Wilson on July 17, 1916. (See Lesson V.) | 12 | 382 |
| Joint stock land banks (see above) | 70 | 422 |
| Mutual savings banks, i. e., the Bowery Savings Bank of New York City, are not incorporated but are subject to State supervision and regulation. (See Lesson IV.) | 618 | 6,905 |
| Stock savings banks exist principally throughout the West and South and are incorporated under State law | 1,029 | 1,791 |
| Postal savings banks, created by special act of Congress, approved by President Taft on June 25, 1910 | 6,800 | 141 |
| Building and loan associations (See Lesson IV.) | 10,009 | 3,343 |
| Private banks are not incorporated but are usually subject to some State supervision | 604 | 166 |

In this table we have listed twelve types of banking institutions. Of these, national banks have the largest assets, while State banks are the most numerous.

National banks are supervised by the Comptroller of the Currency (now H. M. Dawes), who is appointed by the President for a term of five years. A national bank may be organized by five or more incorporators who are men of high standing, who are financially responsible and who can prove to the Comptroller's satisfaction that there is need for a new bank. The minimum capital permitted is $25,000 and for banks in large cities the capital required may be as high as $200,000. The stock has a par value of $100 and must be sold for cash. The amount which a national bank can loan to any one person is carefully stipulated in the act. Each bank is examined at least twice a year by representatives of the Comptroller's office to make sure that its loans are within the law and are good. As a result, there have been few failures. Each national bank must belong to the Federal Reserve System and must keep funds on deposit with it as a reserve against deposits. National banks are privileged to issue paper money not to exceed the amount of their capital, which must be secured by Government bonds plus a 5 per cent. redemption fund.

Besides financing current business operations national banks render many other services to the business community of almost equal value. They collect checks, drafts and notes which the business man has received in the course of his business operations. They take care of his securities and will give him advice regarding investments. They will secure credit information. National banks may act in a fiduciary capacity and may accept savings accounts.

To-day we have spoken of some of the units comprising the American banking system. To-morrow we shall discuss the Federal Reserve System which binds our thousands of banks into one great system.

WHY HOBBIES ARE VALUABLE TO WOMEN

Written by Julia Hoyt.

Have you a hobby? Do you ride it hard? It's a very wise thing to have one. A hobby need not be something extremely important; it may be almost anything that you do to pass the time and keep interested. I think that each of us, rich, poor, man, woman, child, should have a hobby to ride. It may be the salvation of us sometimes—especially in the case of a girl or woman who may suddenly be thrown on her own resources. Then one's hobby can be turned to one's livelihood.

I feel rather strongly on this subject, having happened to have come in contact just lately with two cases; one of a mother and daughter suddenly left without any money. The daughter not only is unqualified for any work but seems to have no ambition to try to become qualified. There is nothing much discouraging, I must admit, than to attempt to suggest work to some girl brought up with the average education and the desires and tastes of most girls who have had many advantages. There is no market for social accomplishments and people will only pay for services rendered.

However, it is interesting to see the ingenuity of some people. I met the other day a woman with no training of any kind who found herself suddenly in a position with a husband incapable of work thru illness, and a son to support and educate. She has always been interested in character reading from faces. People had often told her that she had very quick powers of judging people from their faces. At a loss to know what to do to earn some money she remembered this and immediately studied further into the science and is now earning money enough to support herself and educate her son.

It took imagination and courage to start out on as novel a road as this. It also showed that she had the intelligence to recognize the potential value in a quality that most people would not have considered of any value whatsoever and to turn what at first thought would seem nothing but at most a pastime into a commercial asset.

It is hard to think of any so-called "hobby" that could not be turned into commercial value if necessary, provided the individual has become really educated in that hobby. It is certain that the person well trained in some special subject finds himself with a commercial value, while the person generally intelligent, but trained in nothing, finds that she is of very little use to anybody. Many women who have always in their hearts considered themselves rather clever and efficient persons, find to their amazement, when suddenly forced to make money for themselves, that there is very little money for them in any paid position. This class of women is getting smaller, it is true; more and more girls are brought up to study and learn something that may prove of value to them financially later on, but nevertheless there is still a large percentage of the other kind.

Only the other day I was told a story of a young girl who came with her grandmother into an employment agency for work. They had suddenly lost their money and had no one to turn to. Being of a much older generation the grandmother of course had no training. But neither had the girl. She came into the office and told with great importance that she had been educated at a fashionable finishing school. When asked what she was qualified to do she admitted that she was qualified for nothing. But she was most insistent that the work she did must certainly not be boring! In other words, she not only was of absolutely no value commercially but seemed to have no appreciation of the fact and felt that she could more or less dictate what work she would do. It is a tragic thing to talk to a girl brought up as this on has been brought up and realize that she is forced, whether she wishes or not, to realize how small her value is and how unmercifully practical people in business are forced to be.

What's the remedy? It is: If you are a girl, be sure to have a hobby. Your hobby may some day be more important to you than your "social status."

STATE BREAD LAW IN FORCE

Secretary Shumway Says Adverse Decision of United Sattes Court Has Not Taken Effect.

Secretary Shumway of the Nebraska department of agriculture under whose jurisdiction the standard weight bread law is enforced announces that the law will continue to be enforced until the adverse decision of the United States supreme court becomes effective. He does not know when that will be. He asks bakers and those selling bread to conform to the state law until his department can obtain a copy of the decision and ascertain whether the state will file a motion for a rehearing. The attorney general will determine whether a rehearing is to be applied for. Two judges of the court dissented from the opinion holding the law unconstitutional. Mr. Shumway suggests that it may be several months before a final determination has been reached in this law suit. In fact it seems possible to him that the bread law will be operative and enforceable until the next legislature meets.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, April 16.—Grains closed sharp advances on the local board of trade today.

Buying by shorts in the way of removal of hedges against export sales strengthened wheat as did a decrease in Argentine shipments and unfavorable crop advices from the central states.

Corn was higher on a count of buying by shorts, strength in wheat and a better cash business.

Oats ruled strong all day due to brisk cash business.

Provisions closed irregular, lard was unchanged.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Corn slumped despite strength in other grains at the opening on the Chicago board of trade today.

Wheat's strength was due to better foreign news. Liverpool reported a better demand for both wheat and flour. Domestic conditions were unchanged—good growing weather prevailing except in a few isolated spots. Export business over night aggregated half a million bushels of Manitoba wheat.

Sentiment in corn was bearish. Prices were off fractionally.

Oats went up with wheat despite cautiousness of traders who believe that any substantial increase will bring Canadian competition.

Provisions started easier.

Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, April 16.—The Chicago board of trade will be closed Good Friday April 18th. All leading exchanges in this country as well as abroad will also be closed. United Kingdom markets will remain closed Saturday and Monday. The New York cotton exchange will close also on April 22nd—election day. The New York Coffee and Sugar exchanges will be closed Saturday.

Sentiment is moderately bearish on all grains. Wheat values in Chicago and Winnipeg are working closer together. Some express the belief that present world conditions warrant Winnipeg selling above Chicago.

Sentiment in corn is becoming increasingly bearish, owing to the continued slow eastern cash demand, and the nearness of completion of seeding. With the latter finished, a large movement of corn is expected.

Bullish sentiment in oats is quite pronounced in some quarters. They call attention to the fact that out of a total visible of 14,056,000 bushels there are 10,000,000 bushels held at Chicago, Minneapolis and Duluth, of which about half is already sold for shipment.

Removal of hedges against sales of Rye to Norway was the chief support in the rye market. Export sales of wheat in all positions aggregated 500,000 bushels, including a cargo of Manitobas to Greece. A Montreal confirmation of business in hard winters was lacking. Norway took 200,000 to 250,000 rye.—Lamson Bros. & Co.

Grain Market Opinions.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: We prefer a trading position in grains.

Clement Curtis & Co.: Our market is still commanding too much of a premium over world prices.

Stein Alstrin: A continued trading market is likely.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: The urgent need a marked change in the cash demand.

Bartlett-Frazier & Co.: Cash developments will be the factor.

Thomson McKinnon: We see no reason for sustained strength.

J. E. Bennett & Co.: Sales on hard spots should prove profitable.

Logan & Bryan: On setbacks we favor buying.

E. Lowitz: Lower prices are indicated.

Riordan & Martin: A narrow trading market is likely.—Lamson Bros. & Co.

Journal of Commerce Report.

CHICAGO April 16.—Dullness and weakness appear in prospect in the grain market for some time. Speculative apathy dominated the markets. Export business is lacking and cash demand generally is slow. Diminishing stocks of wheat at Kansas City and Minneapolis are due largely to the sharp falling off in the movement from farms, and not especially because of any great improvement in the cash demand.

Early weather forecast indicates rain or snow; much colder.—Lamson Bros. & Co.

Coming Events in Stocks.

NEW YORK. April 16.—The present technical position of the market suggests the imminence of a substantial rally. The extent of the decline has been great and it should prove a profitable policy to over short commitments on any further weakness Enforced liquidation by weakened accounts should be availed of as good opportunities to the acquisition of the lending dividend paying rails.—Lamson Bros. & Co.

Stock Market Opinions.

Housman & Co. It appears as if much of the original pressure on the market has ceased.

Post & Flagg: Unfavorable news would seem discounted.

Clark-Childs & Co.: A better tone is evident.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: The market behaved very well.

Lamson Bros. & Co.: Following drastic liquidation in Wilson Co. last few days Vice President Skipworth declared that the slump in the bonds was unwarranted. New financing plans will soon be issued. There is every indication this will be a good year in packing business.

Tribune. The advance in foreign exchange is the dominating factor at the moment. Leather and rubber industries as the "sore-spots" of trade. The outlook in the leather industry however is more hopeful.

HIS HUGE ESTATE BRINGS PROPOSALS

When the cables told that Bert Wirth of Lodi, Cal., was the sole heir to the $50,000,000 estate of the late Henry Wirth, who died in London recently. Wirth became the recipient of scores of letters proposing matrimony. But Wirth can't get married, because his wife, from whom he is separated, won't let him. Wirth, who is forty-seven, is a grandson of the English multi-millionaire who made his fortune in mining interests in Australia and South Africa. Wirth will place the estate in the hands of managers and continue to live in Lodi, where he was born.

WANT HISTORIC MEMENTOES

Chancellor Avery Suggests That Nebraska Alumni Contribute Relics of Early Days.

The recent exhibit of the University of Nebraska in connection with the chamber of commerce fiftieth anniversary, has suggested the advisability of collecting pictures and other historic mementos of early days at the university. Chancellor Avery makes an appeal to alumni thru his "Corner" in the University Journal to sort over their relics and send them as a loan or gift to the alumni secretary. The new alumni headquarters in the Temple building will allow space for a collection of photographs of distinct historic interest. The chancellor mentions a picture of Chancellor Canfield and the board of regents, shown in the chamber of commerce exhibit, C. H. Morrill being the sole surviving member of the group.

He writes:

"Some alumnus must have a picture of a student who became a governor or a congressman, as he first appeared on the campus. There is probably somewhere a picture of Chancellor Andrews speaking on seed-corn to the farmers at a railroad station. To those who studied Latin with Professor Barber last semester it would be interesting to drop into the alumni office and see a picture of the professor as he looked when he first became a member of the faculty forty-two years ago. Scattered about the state, there must be a large number of pictures dating from the time of Pershing."

SIMMONS CASE GOES OVER

Death Sentence to Be Considered at an Executive Meeting of Pardon Board.

The board of pardons and paroles, comprising Governor Bryan, Attorney General Spillman and Secretary of State Pool, has taken no action on the application of W. R. Simmons, the Boyd county man who has applied for commutation of the death sentence. The members are studying the record of the conviction in the district court and after familiarizing themselves with the facts as presented to them will hold an executive session to consider action on the application of the prisoner. Attorney General Spillman devoted almost the entire day Wednesday to a study of the record. Governor Bryan said the board would take no action Tuesday. The members hope to meet Thursday but immediate action is not promised.

FEAR TROUBLE AT MARION

Home of Klan Cyclops and Chairman of Board of Supervisors Is Fired Upon.

MARION, Ill., April 16.—Fear of further trouble in Williamson county was expressed today following two disturbances affecting a ku klux klan leader and a judge who called a grand jury which indicted klan leaders.

The home of Sam Sterns, klan cyclops of Marion and chairman of the county board of supervisors, was fired into by unknown assailants. About ten shots were fired.

City Judge E. N. Bowen of Herrin, who called the grand jury which indicted more than a score of klan leaders for their activities in the recent booze war during which Glenn Young, prohibition worker, seized control of Herrin's city ogvernment, was arrested by Young and Chief of Police John Ford, on a charge of filing false affidavits in the hotly contested city election yesterday.

County and city officials are taking steps to prevent another sanguinary battle in "bloody" Williamson conuty.

STEPS TO COLLECT TAX.

DUBLIN, (By mail.)—Vigorous steps are being taken in the Free State for the collection of the arrears of income tax which, during the troubled times before and since the treaty, were allowed to accumulate. In Dublin city and county collections have been made by distraint of the defaulters' goods, and in some instances defaulters have been lodged in jail till the money was paid.

HIS TROUBLES PILED UP

Aged Widower, Married, Separated, and Sued for Breach of Promise.

OMAHA, April 16.—Married, separated, sued for breach of promise and threatened with divorce, all within two months, tells the story of the rapid course of events since C. J. Otis, sixty-five, gay and wealthy widower, threw old age into the discard and began "a life of fun."

Suit against Otis for $25,000 for alleged breach of promise was filed late yesterday by Miss Elizabeth Boyd, twenty-four, who declared Otis promised to wed her on November 15 last.

Miss Boyd's petition declared she relied on this promise until newspapers announced Otis' marriage to Miss Pearl Smith, following a courtship which both adimtted consisted of five minutes conversation during an automobile ride. The couple separated two days later and Miss Smith said she will sue for divorce.

A DANGER IN PACIFIC

British Press Believes American Action a Menace to Western Peace.

LONDON, April 16.—The British press today sees in adoption of the Japanese exclusion amendment to the immigration bill by the congress in Washington "grave danger" to peace in the Pacific.

The Daily News ridicules the allegation that Ambassador Hanihara's note to Secretary Hughes, urging against adoption of the amendment, constitutes a "threat" to American sovereignty and insists that the senate's action on the amendment demonstrates "a dangerous spirit of enmity towards Japan.

The American senate should go slow, the newspaper says, and "consider the note for what it is—an explanation—and think carefully of the dangers toward peace which lurk in intollerance."

Experts or Politicians?

New Republic: Exactly how far the hope that the commission of experts would disentangle the reparations problem and effect an accord between Germany and the allies, can only be fully known when the complete report is published.

Enough semi-inspired items of information have, however, been given to the press to cast grave doubt upon the expert character of the forthcoming report. We are told that the experts are divided, the French and Belgians on one side and the British on the other. The Americans are supposed to be neutral, and working to effect a compromise. If this is true politics has entered into the expert's work, instead of being left to the statesmen who are to accept the report or reject it. The compromise will be a political compromise, not an adjustment of discordant economic views. If the press forecasts of the concrete proposals of the commission of experts have any authority, the influence of politics is already manifest.

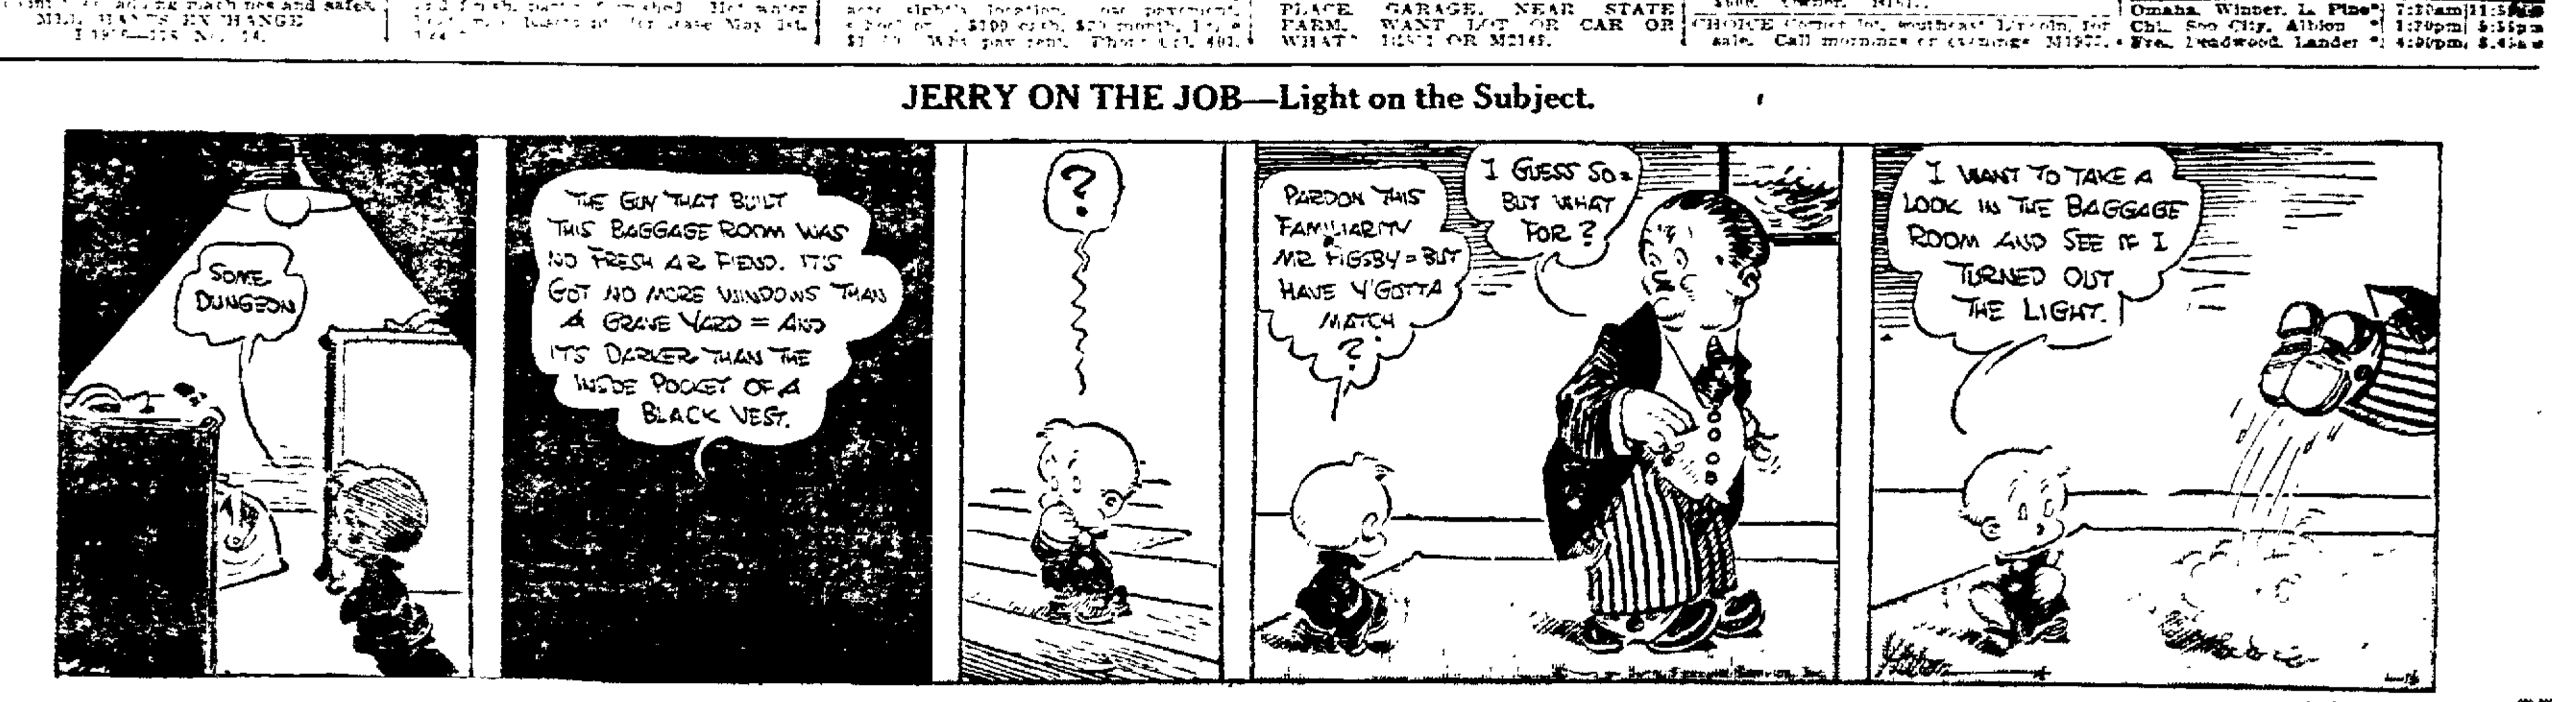

The root of the reparations problem remains, as it has been since the beginning, the excessive demand that are made upon Germany. The total sum should have been fixed at the start at such a figure that Germany could have hoped, thru labor and thrift, to liberate herself in a reasonable time. If the commission of experts had dared to fix such a total, the problem would have been capable of solution. Then there would have been point in placing mortgages on the railway system, the industries and lands, with the provision that such mortgages would be canceled on payment of their face value. The nation and its property owners would have been offered an opportunity to work themselves free.

MEN AND THINGS

Whether we admit it or not we all have varying standards of honesty, in the sense that they vary in accordance with our own interest in a matter or our necessity of gaining what we have started out to secure for ourselves. We are very strong in condemnation of what we do not like in the conduct of others and very apt to excuse no less dishonest things we do or are done in our interest. This is the restatement, of course, of an old truth. We thought about it when we read Senator Johnson's declaration that he is in the presidential campaign to drive out of the republican party the alliance between "crooked business and crooked politics that dominates it." When we stop to consider that every defeat that has been administered to Johnson so far this campaign has been at the hands of a primary election, we are justified in questioning the standard of honesty of a man who will make that statement.

No one has stopped long enough lately to count the number of kinds of risks that insurance companies will cover with policies. It is stated, however, that where anybody has a demand for coverage to protect his stake or his interests against loss thru some untoward happening, he can get it supplied. You remember how we in Lincoln, when state fair week time approached, sat up all night Sunday to pray for dry weather for four days and how philosophical we tried to be if it rained on Monday, explaining that it just wet down the dust nicely. Now for a few hundred dollars we can buy rain insurance, sleep soundly every night and wiggle our fingers at the rain gods. Last year over four millions in premiums for rain insurance were paid.

About every other fellow thinks that insurance is a gamble. He is also very apt to regard life as belonging in the same category. He is wrong in both instances. Infinite pains are taken in every line of insurance, by patient men of a scientific turn of mind to ascertain the workings of the law of averages therein, and to fix the premium rate accordingly. It is quite true that the law of averages governs the game of gambling, but there the resemblance ceases. Premiums are the same in insurance on the same risk or law of averages working. In gambling one's bets vary so as to destroy the comparison.

We make a lot of fuss about high taxes, just as we make a lot of fuss about other things. Part of us do this because we like to make a fuss about things. It gives us a reaction that is just as titilating to us as tho we had swallowed a pleasant draught, and if anybody remonstrates with us about the sharpness of our tongues or the tartness of our tempers we demand to know if he doesn't like to have the truth told. As if telling the truth because it happens to be disagreeable is a justification in itself. It is not justified unless it is coupled with a constructive criticism, a suggestion of how to better the condition complained of. Otherwise we are apt to find that we have convicted ourselves merely of being bad tempered.

More language has been spilled about high taxes in Nebraska than about anything else that lends itself to dispute, yet the annual fire loss in the state is about two and a half millions, which would take care of every ward of the state, in hospital, prison or correction school, and maintain all of them. It would almost pay the expenses of running the state university. Half of this sum could be saved if we would stop our carelessness and do a little thinking while we are about our tasks. That sum represents waste wantonly committed because we could prevent it if we would. In war time, when conservation was most heavily impressed upon us, the fire loss in Nebraska was about half what it was before and since, figures that convict us.

The verdict of the Dawes commission is that Germany has not played fair in the matter of reparations and that she has sought in many ways to avoid the solemn obligation of the Versailles treaty. It recites in sufficient detail to make it understandable that she committed most of the acts we condemn in delinquent debtors, such as secreting assets and squandering cash on hand. In war Germany was a ruthless, cruel and unfair combatant. She was taught at arms the lesson that that cannot win. It seems now that another lesson is to be taught that it does not pay to be unfair in peace. The Germans, whom we know to be kindly, peaceable persons, thrifty, honest and scrupulous about payment of debts, ought to repudiate such leadership.

Answer to Yesterday's.

In that marked down china sale Mrs. Bargainhunter bought 10 plates at 13 cents each on Saturday and returned them on Monday for 18 saucers at 3 cents each and 8 cups at 12 cents each, making a total of $1.50 as she returned the plates at 15 cents each; but on Saturday she could have bought 13 cups at 10 cents each, so she really lost 32 cents by the exchange.

A Suggestion.

K. C. Times: It's high time that radio ceased to be a public plaything and was turned to some really useful purpose.

For instance, every evening between the hours of 6 and 7, the following should be broadcast at intervals into every family dining room of the United States:

"Eat from the side of your spoon."

"No; you're not going to fill up on crackers and butter."

"Don't tell me you washed those hands before you came to the table."

"Take your spoon out of your cup."

"Never mind what's for dessert; first eat your meat and potatoes."

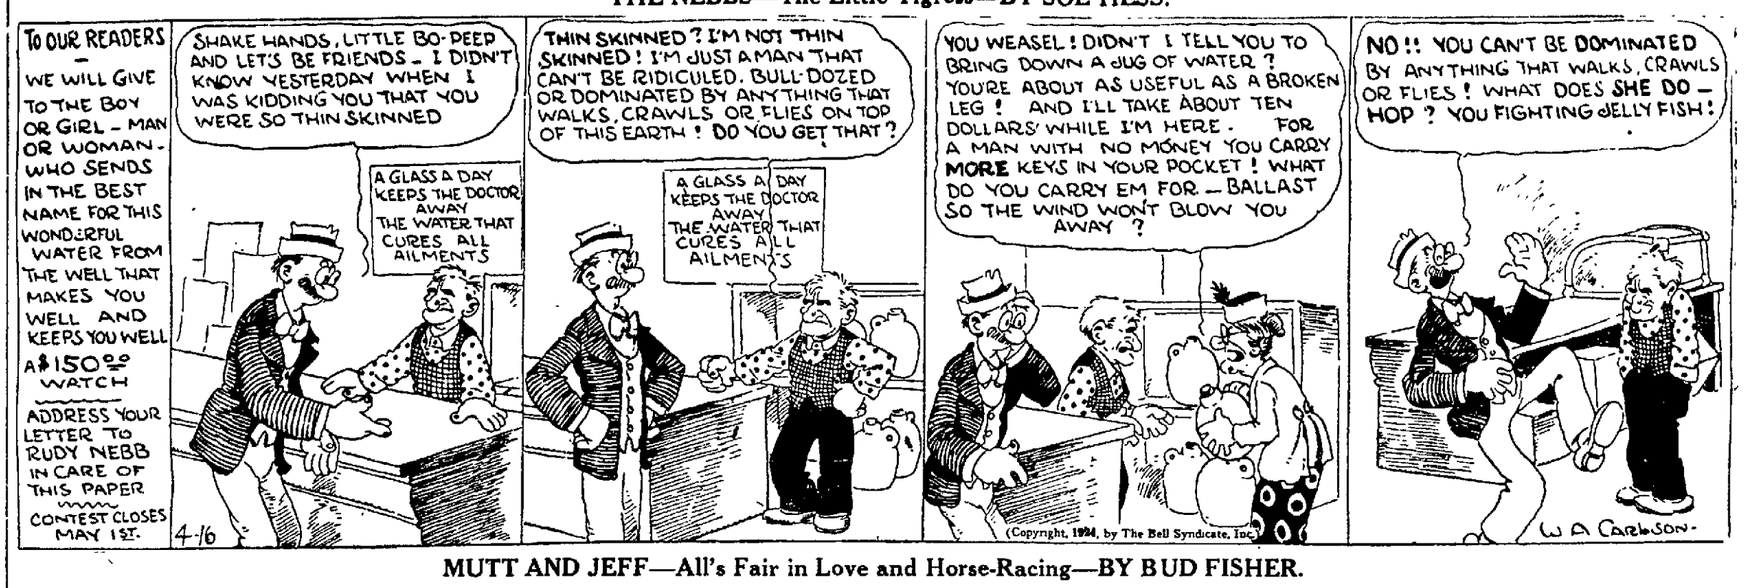

"The crusts will make your hair curly."

"There you go! All over my nice, clean tablecloth."
